

Concise Geetä

For Students

108 Selected Verses from the Bhagvad Geetä
The Celestial Song of the Supreme Lord

The Essence of Yoga and Vedänta

Spiritual Wisdom of Eastern Traditions

Dr. Ved Prakash Chaudhary
Educators' Society for Heritage of India (ESHA)

Published by:

ESHA - Educators Society for Heritage of India
A non-profit 501(C)3 Educational Organization
Incorporated in New Jersey, USA

This book is produced purely for educational purposes.
It can be viewed or downloaded on any electronic media:
laptop, iPad, tablet, or smartphone, from the Educators Society for Heritage of India website:
www.ESHAusa.org

But the contents of this book may not be reproduced in any form and by any means for commercial purposes without the written consent of the publisher.

First Edition: 2014

© Copyright: 2012 by Ved P. Chaudhary, Ph.D.
All Rights Reserved.

Concise Geetä

Explaining the Four Spiritual Paths

- ❖ Dhyāna Yoga: Meditation for Inner Peace

- ❖ Karma Yoga: Selfless Service to Humanity

- ❖ Gyāna Yoga: Spiritual Wisdom (Vedānta)

- ❖ Bhakti Yoga: Loving Devotion to Lord

Dedication

त्वदीयम् वस्तु गोविन्द - तुभ्यमेव समर्पये

Dedicated to the Supreme Lord Sri Krishna who bestows blessings and bounties on all beings.

with Profound Gratitude to my Gurus:
Pujya Swāmi Chinmayananda
Pujya Swāmi Dayānanda Saraswatī
Pujya (Dr.) Swāmi Shāshvatānanda

Prayers to Lord Sri Krishna

श्री कृष्ण वंदना

श्रीकृष्ण गोविंद हरे मुरारे
हे नाथ नारायण वासुदेव ।
जिह्वे पिबस्वामृतम् एतदेव
गोविंद दामोदर माधवेति । ।

Let us meditate on all names, forms and attributes of Srī Krishna as Lord Vishnu, Govind, Hari, Murāri, Vāsudeva, and Dāmodar.

As you meditate on His attributes as Mādhava, experience the sweetness of nectar on thy tongue.

मूकम् करोति वाचालम्
पंगुम् लंघयते गिरिम् ।
यत् कृपा तमहम् वंदे
परमानंद माधवम् । ।

Whose compassion enables one with a speech disorder to become an eloquent speaker, or a physically disabled person to climb a mountain,

I pray to Lord Srī Krishna who is Paramānand (Greatest bliss) and Mādhava (Lord of the universe).

Contents

Foreword by Swāmi Chidānanda	1
Preface	3
Transliteration and Pronunciation Guide	5
Essential Vocabulary	8
Historical Perspective	11
Background - Setting the Stage-	13
1. Self-discipline: Controlling Body & Mind through Intellect	.21
Introducing Four Pāths of Yoga	33
2. Dhyāna Yoga: The Path of Meditation for Inner Peace	36
3. Karma Yoga: The Path of Selfless Service	46
4. Gyāna Yoga: Spiritual Knowledge & Wisdom: Vedānta	60
4-A. Knowledge of the Self (ātmā or Spirit)	63
4-B. Knowledge of Paramātmā (Supreme Spirit)	70
5. Bhakti Yoga: Path of Loving Devotion, Surrendering to God	83
Concluding Remarks	89
References	92
<hr/>
Appendices:
Appendix 1. Three Inherent Human Attributes (Guṇās)	93
Appendix 2. Yama and Niyama of Patanjali's Yoga-Sutras	96
Appendix 3. Essential karma (Meritorious Deeds)	97
Appendix 4. Choosing a Vocation following Natural Aptitude	100
Appendix 5. Cosmology and Creation Theory in Geetā	103
Scientists Carl Sagan, Alan Watts and Dick Teresi on Hindu Cosmology	108
Appendix 6. Index of Sanskrit Verses	Xi

About Swāmi Chidānanda Ji

Swāmi Chidānanda is a Vedānta scholar, teacher of spirituality, motivational speaker and writer with thirty years of Upanishadic studies and research. He is recognized for his clarity of communication, freedom from bias and depth of insights. In his earlier avatar, he held an M.Tech. degree from IIT Madras.

He served the Mission of Swāmi Chinmayānanda for 18 years and the Education Centre of Krishnamurti Foundation in Vārānasi for 10 years. As an Independent Resource Person, he currently speaks all over the world on the values and virtues of Upanishads and conducts DHIMAHI Workshops for students and corporate executives to enhance their soft skills, accelerating their learning curves to emerge as more mature leaders. He is the Founder of the Fowai Forum (www.fowai.org) and AUPA (Upanishadic Wisdom). See www.AUPA.in

FOREWORD

I join the thousands of spiritual seekers who should heartily welcome this new book on Bhagavad-Geetā. Presented in a lucid manner, with appealing illustrations, this work has the potential to kindle great interest in people, especially youngsters, in delving into the precious wisdom of this most popular scripture of Hinduism.

Dr. Chaudhary ably connects the values taught in the Geetā to happiness in our life. For example, he rightly declares that lack of self-control is behind gun violence in schools or public places, binge drinking on college campuses, high incidence of fatal accidents etc. (in his commentary on selected verse 1.6). By thus showing the timeless relevance of the teachings of the Song Celestial, the author here gives the new generation, especially of Indian and Hindu origin, the much needed assurance that their heritage has much that applies very well to today's challenges.

The classification of the verses to make them belong to one of the four major paths (yogas) of Hinduism, namely karma, bhakti, dhyāna and gyāna, Dr. Chaudhary helps spiritual aspirants to choose, on a trial basis at least, one of the paths and get going. This exercise of bunching verses, drawn from different chapters, helps people of this 'digitally distracted' generation to identify their practice with greater ease.

Quoting from eminent people of yesteryears and recent times, the writer has ably shown how scientists (like Oppenheimer), poets (like Emerson), statesmen (like J. F. Kennedy) and philosophers (like Rādhākṛishnan) echoed the revelations of the Geetā. With his references to Martin Luther King Jr, Nelson Mandela and M. K. Gandhi, Dr. Chaudhary has drawn our attention to the fact that great minds, which served humanity with dedication, selflessness and nobility, were aligned with the powerful insights of the Geetā.

I recommend this book to everybody who wishes to get a good idea of what the famous Bhagavad-Geetā is all about. This work can be an excellent introduction to Geetā for those who are beginners. It is also something worth reading for those who have studied Geetā for years, as it can provide a nice review of great body of wisdom that Lord Shri Krishna left behind as his immortal legacy.

I heartily congratulate Dr. Chaudhary on his completing such a beautiful piece of writing. May his dream of facilitating the spiritual education of upcoming generations be realized.

Swāmi Chidānanda

Bengaluru
February 9, 2020

Preface

Yoga and meditation are widely practiced; their benefits towards physical and mental health are well researched and understood by seekers of balanced and holistic wellness in the western world. However, the spiritual dimension of yoga in its fullness and richness, is not as well established because authentic yet accessible sources that present the spiritual dimension of yoga in a simple, contemporary, western context are not widely available.

This small booklet aims to provide a simple but comprehensive overview of the spiritual dimensions of yoga as recited by Lord Sri Krishna in the Geetā. It is written for the students of Sanskrit, philosophy, culture and yoga, and TM practitioners who have interest in learning about the Eastern wisdom traditions and want to learn more about the spiritual dimensions of yoga and vedānta.

The Bhagvad Geetā is the most revered sacred scripture of Hindus. Ever since its first translation by Charles Wilkins<sup>1</sup> it has been greatly admired by American spiritual seekers, like Ralph Waldo Emerson<sup>2</sup> (1803-1882), Henry David Thoreau<sup>3</sup> (1818-1862), and Walt Whitman (1819-1892). Since then, numerous translations and commentaries on Geetā have been written, yet Geetā remains difficult to understand for many seekers because it requires sādhanā to derive understanding.

Bhagvad Geetā, a poetic dialogue between Lord Sri Krishna and Prince Arjuna, presents a well reasoned and compelling appeal to fight evil, injustice, and corruption at both levels: in the physical world to uphold Dharma (righteousness) and create a just society where people can live in peace and harmony, as well as from within, to ennoble oneself to achieve lasting peace and happiness, and ultimately to free oneself from the cycle of life and death (attain Moksha) through union with the Supreme.

The dialog between Lord Krishna and prince Arjuna took place thousands of years ago and makes references to the society of that ancient period. The lessons in this

---

<sup>1</sup> The Bhagvat Geeta, or Dialogues of Kreeshna and Arjūn (1785)

<sup>2</sup> Emerson wrote of Geeta in his journal in 1831 "It was the first of books; it was as if an empire spake to us, nothing small or unworthy, but large, serene, consistent, the voice of an intelligence which in another age and climate had pondered and thus disposed of the same questions which exercise us". Emerson founded the Transcendental Club in 1836.

<sup>3</sup> Author of Walden, wrote: "In the morning I bathe my intellect in the stupendous and cosmogonical philosophy of the Bhagvad Geeta, since whose composition years of the gods have elapsed, and in comparison with which our modern world and its literature seems puny and trivial." He also wrote: "Whenever I have read any part of the Vedas, I have felt that some un-earthly and unknown light illuminated me. In the great teaching of the Vedas, there is no touch of the sectarianism. It is of all ages, climes, and nationalities, and is the royal road for the attainment of the Great Knowledge."

booklet do not provide a literal translation but try to relate the sense of the selected verses to the modern world through modern vernacular as used in the English medium in the West.

Geetā is composed of seven hundred (700) verses organized in 18 chapters. In order to present the important themes and messages of Geetā in only 108 verses, I have selected what I considered the most profound verses from all the chapters and compiled them in five short, coherent lessons: one each for the four spiritual paths (Dhyāna, Gyāna, Karma and Bhakti) and one chapter on Self-discipline which is essential for anyone trying to tread on the path of spirituality. Obviously, verses in this booklet are not presented in the same order in which they appear in Geetā, but in the order in which they are relevant to the five lessons organized in this booklet.

The inspiration for this booklet came from H.H. Mahāmandaleshwar (Dr.) Swāmi Shāswatānanda of Akhand Geetā Peeth, Kurukshetra, India, in his lectures at Ved Mandir in East Brunswick, NJ. Its content is highly influenced by his lectures and by the writings and lectures of H.H. Swāmi Chinmayānanda and H.H. Swāmi Dayānanda Saraswati of Ārsha Vidyā Gurukulam, PA.

The outline and structure of this monograph came to me in a flash of insight with a divine impulse to write it. But the selection of verses, while limiting the total number to 108, and finding words, equivalent English expressions and examples to express my thoughts as I intuitively understood each selected verse, has been a daunting challenge which took, on and off, several years.

I offer loving gratitude to my wife, Rajni, and to family and friends for their interest and encouragement for writing this booklet. Special, heart-felt gratitude is due to two young people: Amit Chaturvedi (Sanskrit scholar, Ph.D. candidate at University of Hawaii) and Sona Chaudhary (High school over achiever in English; published author by the 6th grade) and a colleague, Piyush Desai; without their critical reviews and editing skills I could not have completed this booklet.

Reviews and suggestions from Dr. Ari Jain, Dr. Ram Misra, Dr Ramesh Paliwal, Jai Chaudhary, Sharon McGreevy, and Ashu Sharma have helped bring this book into its present form and are deeply appreciated. Thanks to Swāmi Tattvavidānanda of Ārsha Vidyā Gurukulam, PA and Swāmi Jyotirmayānanda of Ānand Āshram, Kerala for their guidance and encouragement. Profound gratitude to Swāmi Chidānanda for his suggestions for improvements and for writing the Foreword.

Ved Prakāsh Chaudhary
Marlboro, New Jersey (USA)

Transliteration and Pronunciation Guide for Sanskrit words

Bhagvad Geetā is composed in beautiful Sanskrit verses that are easy to recite and remember. Also, the sound of Sanskrit language gives the feeling of a deeper spiritual connection which is not possible with any translation. Therefore, this book attempts to make it possible for the reader to learn the teachings of Geetā from the original source.

Sanskrit is an elegant language with phonetic alphabet, Devanāgarī (Divine script), containing 14 vowels and 36 consonants, with a separate character for each distinct speech sound. Unfortunately, even those with the knowledge of Devanāgarī script can not easily read Geetā.

What makes reading Geetā difficult is the practice of joining words together in Sanskrit. For example: Param + ātmā becomes Paramātmā, a common word for God. But when multiple words are spliced, e.g., Karmaṇi + eva + adhikāraḥ + te = Karmanyevādhikāraṣte, it becomes difficult to read the verse, un-splice the constituent words, and understand the meaning.

In order to make it easy to read and understand, I have written the verses without splicing words together. Reading the verses with separate, distinct words is very effective in remembering them. And by dwelling on the meaning of words, it is possible to appreciate the deeper message as it was meant in Sanskrit; No translation can communicate the elegance, beauty and shades of meaning that the original Sanskrit verse carries.

The text in this booklet contains verses in Sanskrit for readers who know (or want to learn) Devanāgarī. For others, a simple transliteration scheme has been used to write Sanskrit words using English alphabet (with 5 vowels and 21 consonants) in a manner that is intuitive to English readers<sup>4</sup>. It would facilitate in pronouncing the words correctly.

---

<sup>4</sup> The International Alphabet of Sanskrit Transliteration (IAST) is commonly used for writing Sanskrit words in English alphabet. However, IAST employs diacritical marks that are inconsistent with the pronunciation guides in American English dictionaries and, therefore, unfamiliar to English readers. In order to avoid the use of unfamiliar diacritical marks, we have used only a subset of IAST.

Vowels:*pronounced as:

a as in above, acute, alone
 ā as in fāther, jāṛ, fār, cār ai as a in fat, cat, hat, bat au as in author, Paul, haul e as in San Jose, crochet

pronounced as:

i as in it, fit, kitchen
 ī or ee as in meet, keep, sleep
 o as in go, slow, boat, pole u as in put, pull, push, full ū or oo as in cool, fool, tool

General (intuitive) rule: a line above any vowel indicates a long vowel sound.

Consonants: The reader should become familiar with the following notations to differentiate between soft and hard sounds and aspirated sounds used in Sanskrit.

General rule: A dot under the letter indicates hard sound;
 Aspirated sounds have an 'h' added.

Normal soft/hard sounds

b as in but, boy, basic c as in epic, dharmic

 d (soft sound) as in this, that ḍ (hard sound) as in done g as in going, great j as in just, judge, jewel k same as c in cat, car...

 n as in nut, not, note
 t (soft sound) as in pasta
 ṭ (hard sound) as in total, art

Aspirated sounds pronounced as:

bh as in abhor ch as in chalk ch as in catchhim, birch-hill dh as in adhere, breathe-hard ḍh as in hardhat, redhead, madhouse gh as in doghouse, loghouse jh as in leisure, hedgehog (hejhog) kh as in chutzpah, inkhorn ksh sounds like kch ṇ hard sound, not found in English
 th as in thunder, thatch
 ṭh as in anthill, warthog

Other consonants have roughly the same sounds as in English.

Frequently used simple Sanskrit words:

न	(na)	not	मा	(māā)	not	च	cha	and
अहम्	aham	I	मम्	(mam)	my, mine	माम्	mām	to me
त्वम्	tvam	you	त्वा	tvā	to you	त्वाम्	tvām	to you
तत्	tat	that	तम्	tam	to him	ते	te	they, to you
सः	saḥ	he	यः	yaḥ	whoever	सा	sā	she
इदम्	idam	this	एतद्	etad	this	अदस्	adas	that
यदा	yadā	when	कदा	kadā	when	तदा	tadā	then (time)
यथा	yathā	as, like	तथा	tathā	same way	एवम्	evam	like this
अस्मि	asmi	am	अस्ति	asti	is	इति	iti	like this
आदि	ādi	begining	अंत	ant	end	अनंत	anant	endless, infinite
कः	kaḥ	who, what	कथम्	katham	how	किम्	kim	who, what
यत्र	yatra	where ever	तत्र	tatra	there	सर्वत्र	sarvatra	everywhere
यतः	yataḥ	from where	ततः	tataḥ	from there	कुतः	kutah	from where यत्	yat	since	किंतु	kintu	but	कुत्र	kutra	where
चेत्	chet	if so	तर्हि	tarhi	then (logic)	भूयः	bhūyah	again
इह	ih	here	हि	hi	indeed	इव	iva	as, like

Frequently used Compound words that have not been broken out in the text:

चाहम् (च + अहम्)	chāham (cha + aham)	= and I
चापि (च + अपि)	chāpi (cha + api)	= and also
चैव (च + एव)	chaiva (cha + eva)	= and only
चैनं (च + एनम्)	chainam (cha + enam)	= and ... to this
नैनं (न + एनम्)	nainam (na + enam)	= not ... to this

Epithets used in Geetā for Sri Krishna:

Achyuta, Govinda, Keshava, Hari, Mādhava, Madhusūdan, Vāsudeva

Epithets used in Geetā for Arjuna:

Pārtha, Pāṇḍava, Bhārata, Kaunteya, Dhananjaya, Mahābāho

Essential Vocabulary

Aham	pronoun I; also self-centered ego
Ahamkāra	Ego, false pride
Ahinsā	Non-violence, not harming any living being
ānanda	Bliss, pure joy
Ananta	Limitless, infinite, God
ātmā	Soul, spirit, self, or the essence of life
Bhagavāna	Divine (God)
Bhārata	India in Sanskrit and other Indian languages
Bhārata	Prince Arjuna, a descendent of an ancient Indian dynasty started with King Bharat
Bhakti	Surrendering to Divine with love, devoitoion and service
Bhāvam	Emotion, Spiritual Energy Field
Bhoga	Enjoyment, indulgence in sensory gratification
Bhūta	Physical entity (living body)
Brahmā	The creator aspect of the Supreme Godhead
Brahman	Absolute Supreme Divinity (Godhead)
Brahmin	A highly educated person, belonging to the priestly class
Chit	Consciousness
Chitta	Deep thought, collection of all memories of life
Chintana	Thinking of something
Dāna	Donation, offering something of value, service to humanity
Dharma	Principles of virtuous human conduct in harmony with the universal laws of nature. Includes notions of moral duty and social justice for harmony and well being of society.
Deha	Physical body
Dehī	Metaphysical Soul or Spirit dwelling in the physical body
Devā	Divine Angel, also written as Devatā
Devī	Feminin form of Devā
Divya	Divine, enlightened
Dhyāna	Meditation
Dukha	Pain, sadness, misery (antonym: Sukha)
Gyāna	Spiritual Knowledge, wisdom
Guṇa	Three inherent qualities in nature (Sattva, Rajas, Tamas)
Indriyān	Sensory organs (eyes, ears, nose...)
Īshvara	Lord (God)
Jīva	Living being
Jivātmā	Ātmā, the essence of all living beings
Kāma	Desire, sensory gratification, enjoyment
Karma	Deeds, metaphysical law of human actions and reactions (i.e., effects on one's own life), the sum total of one's actions in the current and past lives that determines the possibilities and circumstances of future lives

Krodha	Anger
Kshetra	Field, field of action, domain of activity
Kuru	Dynasty in Northwest India
Mana, Mānas	Mind, Mental
Mandir	Hindu temple
Mantra	Sanskrit verse for prayer or chant
Māyā	Creative aspect of Brāhman with three Guṇas, attachment to material objects
Moksha	Objective of human life: Liberation from the cycle of life and death by uniting the soul with the Spirit or Brahman
Pāṇḍava	Prince Arjuna (plural: all five noble Sons of King Pāndu)
Paramātmā	Supreme Soul (Godhead)
Prākṛiti	Mother nature, physical body, inborn personality traits
Pūjā	Hindu prayer ritual
Purusha	ātmā (the life of physical body), man (in common usage)
Rajas	Guṇa (tendency to indulge in sensory gratification)
Sansāra	World; the cycle of life and death (Reincarnation)
Sat	Real, original, changeless essence
Sattva	Guṇa (tendency to pure, virtuous thoughts and deeds)
Satya	Truth
Sevā	Selfless service to elders, others in need, as an offering to God
Sukha	Pleasure, happiness (antonym: Dukha)
Srī, Shri	A word of respect
Tamas	Tendency to indulge in impure, bad thoughts and deeds
Tapas	Virtuous austerity, self-discipline, self-control
Upanishad	108 Hindu scriptures (also called Vedānta): e.g., Ishā, Kena, ...
Veda	Oldest (4) Hindu scriptures: Rig, Yajur, Atharva, Sām
Vedānta	Spiritual wisdom as contained in Geetā and Upanishads
Yagya, Yajna	An undertaking sacrificing self-interest for the good of society
Yoga	(yoke) Integrating body, mind, intellect with ātmā.

** English language has no words equivalent to Devī and Devatā. These words have been incorrectly translated as 'gods' and convey the sense that Hinduism is polytheistic. It is important to understand that Devīs and Devatās are different names, forms, and aspects of the same One God, called Brahman, in Vedas. Veda's proclaimed "Ekam Sat, vipra bahudhā vadanti" translated as: "Truth is One, sages allude to the same One with many names and forms."

Historical Perspective

Many thousands of years ago, perhaps during the Indus Valley Civilization<sup>5</sup> (approximately five thousand years ago<sup>6</sup>) a mighty Kuru dynasty of Kshatriyas (protectors of the weak) ruled large parts of North India with their capital in Hastināpur (northwest India). When the ruling king Pāṇḍu died, his eldest son, Yudhiṣṭhira, was too young to occupy the throne, so Pāṇḍu's only brother Dhritarāshṭra, who was blind from birth, became the care-taker king.

King Pāṇḍu had five sons (collectively called Pāṇḍavas). They were noble, pious and righteous. Dhritarāshṭra had one hundred sons (collectively known as Kauravas), but most of them were embodiment of evil. When he became too old, his eldest son, Duryodhana, wanted to occupy the throne even though Yudhiṣṭhira was the eldest and wisest among all Pāṇḍavas and Kauravas and therefore, had right to succession. Dhritarāshṭra, forgetting his moral duty to confer the throne on the eldest and ablest successor, supported Duryodhan's unjust desire for the throne. Meanwhile, the subjects of the kingdom had become miserable and the moral character of the royal family had become despicable.

In this epoch, Śrī Krishna, who was an Avatār (incarnation) of Lord Vishnu, had appeared on earth to guide kings and rulers in virtuous ways to serve their people and uphold justice. He had established a mighty kingdom in Dwārikā (present day Gujarāta) and was the wisest and most respected statesman of his time. He was related to the Kuru royal family as a maternal cousin of Pāṇḍavas, so he took upon himself to counsel Duryodhana and mediate the dispute of succession peacefully. However, despite his best efforts, Duryodhana would not concede even five inches of land to Pāṇḍavas, let alone giving them half the kingdom.

Duryodhana proclaimed that if Pāṇḍavas wanted even an inch of land, they would have to wage a war with his formidable army. Reluctantly, Pāṇḍavas, in the interest of upholding Dharma (moral duty) for the welfare of the masses in their kingdom, agreed to fight as the last resort. Śrī Krishna declared that he will not fight on either side, but Duryodhana insisted on his help so Śrī Krishna gave his army to him. On the other hand, Arjuna requested only for his presence on his side, so he agreed to serve not as a warrior (not fighting with weapons) but as the charioteer and adviser to Arjuna who was a true friend of Śrī Krishna and a noble warrior and ardent

<sup>5</sup> The Indus Valley Civilization (IVC) or Sindhu-Sarasvati Civilization (SSC) was a Bronze Age civilization that existed from 3300–1300 BCE. Source: en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Indus\_Valley\_Civilization

<sup>6</sup> A seminar was held on January 5-6, 2003 in Bangalore, India on "The Date of Mahabharata War: based on Astronomical Data Using Planetarium Software" where several eminent researchers submitted papers. Based on the scientific research and evidence based on archeology, astronomy and linguistics by Dr. Narahari Achar (a professor of physics at University of Memphis, TN) and others, the seminar officially accepted that the Mahabharata War began on 22nd November, 3067 BCE. Ref: <http://www.patheos.com/blogs/drishtikone/2009/08/krishna-and-mahabharat-historical-reality/>

Kshatriya (defender of the weak) of his time ready to uphold justice and Dharma (righteousness) in society.

Before the start of the war, Sri Krishna counseled Arjuna not only in his immediate Dharma but, more deeply, in the basic questions asked by every intelligent human being at critical times in their life: Who am I? What is the purpose of life? What will happen to me after I die? What is right or wrong in a given situation? Is there a God? Who (or what) is God, the Ultimate Reality? How can I know the Ultimate Truth, the Ultimate Reality?

While this story is set in a physical place and time: a royal dynasty, with a looming war, and a mighty leader, Arjuna, engulfed in self doubt, not knowing what to do, this is also an unmistakable metaphor for the inner struggle of what is the right thing to do when we find ourselves in a moral quandary, which happens to each one of us from time to time.

Unmistakable metaphor? You ask, how so? Well, think of Arjuna as any human being and Sri Krishna as the Supreme (God) who, as the charioteer, guides one's life. Further, the blind king Dhritā-rāshṭra is the metaphor for human beings blinded with selfish interests, greed and passion; the battle is the metaphor for the inner struggle between a few good thoughts (like the five Pandavas) against a large army of bad habits, or evil thoughts (like one hundred Kauravas) that might delude our thinking about questions of what is right or wrong in many stressful situations that we go through in our work life and home life.

Through this metaphor, Bhagvad Geetā blends the two aspects of reality:

1. the physical (ādhi-bhautik) aspect: as a physical war between two armies.
2. the metaphysical, (ādhyātmik) aspect: for example, an inner struggle between right and wrong, evil and virtue, in human psyche.

In other words, whatever phenomenon exists in the physical universe also exists within our selves. Our bodies with souls are microcosms; the physical universe is the macrocosm; and the Divine pervades both the microcosm and the macrocosm. Accordingly, this physical war between Pāṇḍava and Kaurava armies is perceived by spiritually intuitive thinkers as the universal phenomenon of man's inner struggle. Paramhansa Yogananda has expounded on the ādhyātmik aspect of Sri Krishna's message in his translation of the Bhagvad Geeta, Royal Science of God-Realization, as the Immortal Dialogue between Soul and Spirit.

Perhaps, this is the aspect of Geetā that Mahātmā Gāndhi, the apostle of peace and non-violence, took to heart as he wrote: When doubts haunt me, disappointments stare me in the face, and I see not one ray of hope on the horizon, I turn to the Bhagvad-Geetā and find a verse to comfort me; and I immediately begin to smile in the midst of overwhelming sorrow...

Concise Geetä

Background: Setting the Stage

The blind king Dhritarāshtra spoke:

Verse B.1 धर्मक्षेत्रे कुरुक्षेत्रे समवेता युयुत्सवः

मामकाः पाण्डवाः चैव किम् अकुर्वत सञ्जय (BG1.1) 7

Dharma-kshetre kuru-kshetre samavetā yuyutsavaḥ māmakāḥ Pāṇḍavāḥ chaiva kim akurvata Sanjaya?

Dhrita-rāshtra, the blind king, sitting in his palace, asked his wise counsel, Sanjaya, who had 'divya-drishṭi' (divine vision) that enabled him to see things happening in far off places:

Assembled in the field of righteousness (Dharm-Kshetra), on the holy lands of Kuru dynasty (Kuru-kshetra), intent on waging a war,
what did the Pāndavas and my sons do?
Tell me Sanjaya!

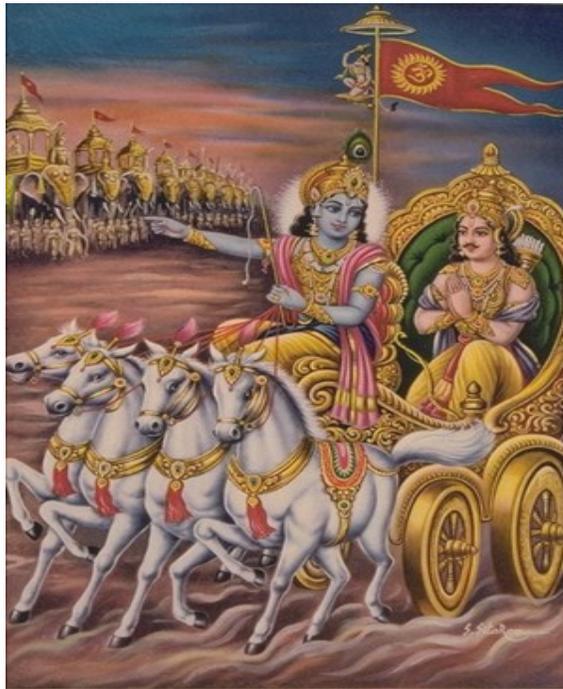

Geetā starts with the two words Dharm-Kshetra and Kuru-kshetra. The first word, Dharm-kshetra, declares the subject matter of Bhagvad Geetā: the domain of spiritual wisdom and moral deeds. The second word Kuru-kshetra suggests a physical field of war, conflict, or struggle between the forces of good and evil. Thus, Bhagvad Geetā synthesizes the field of human thought and action at two levels: the physical and the spiritual. The discourse of Srī Krishna addresses the constant struggle in the human psyche between right and wrong.

7

Serial numbers of verses in the chapters of this booklet are different from the verse numbers in Bhagvad Geetā, I have marked verse numbers of Bhagvad Geetā as (BG xx). Thus, here BG 1.1 means this verse is from Bhagvad Geetā Chapter 1, verse 1, whereas its serial number in this booklet is B.1 denoting Background chapter, verse 1.

The metaphor continues to the next level, as illustrated in the picture here: Sri Krishna serves as the charioteer of Arjuna's chariot that is drawn with four horses, as well as his mentor and spiritual guide. Metaphorically, the chariot is the physical body and the horses driving the chariot are the sense organs. The reins of the horses are the nervous system including the brain and the mind. Prince Arjuna, owner of the chariot, symbolizes the ātmā (spirit) dwelling in the body, whereas the charioteer is the intellect; in this case, it is Sri Krishna himself, as Paramātmā, the highest principle guiding a pure ātmā.

Thus, while the physical background presented in the first verse (1.1) was a battle field with two rival armies (representing vice and virtue), the discourse Sri Krishna offered involved the entire field of human actions, reactions, emotions, and experiences involving our physical self (body, senses, mind and intellect, ...) and our metaphysical self (ātmā), which is the source of life, vitality, intuition and higher level intelligence (consciousness) permeating every cell in the body.

Sri Krishna and Arjuna in the Chariot driven by four horses

“Horses which cannot be brought under control (running without reins), a car without brakes, and a person without sense control, are all extremely dangerous and heading for disaster.” Source: The Teachings of Sri Sathya Sai Baba

Srī Krishna's discourse in Geetā reveals the mystery that is life and extends to the conduct of human life, to the philosophy of life, by addressing relevant questions: What is the purpose of life? and How to live a life of meaning and purpose? ...

Thus, the eternal, internal struggle of human beings is the backdrop of the comprehensive divine lecture of Srī Krishna. His words were not only addressed to prince Arjuna but to all humanity. His message contains the over-arching theology of Sanātan Dharma (eternal order or universal principles) which is the original source of what is now known as Hinduism.

This verse has a highly significant practical application for daily life. At the end of the day, take time to do some introspection and ask yourself this question: in your thoughts and deeds today, who won: Kauravas or Pāṇḍavas? If sensory cravings, obsessions, selfishness and greed prevailed, Kauravas won. If you did an act of kindness, prevented injustice from happening, or if you helped some one in need, then Pāṇḍavas won the day. Such daily introspection along with some reading of Geetā and meditation will lead one to a righteous life, on the path of spirituality.

Thus, the physical, adhyātmik and divine aspects are all beautifully integrated and interwoven throughout the discourse in Geetā.

From here on, all the verses are spoken by Srī Krishna and Arjuna in a dialog and communicated by the wise minister Sanjaya, with Divya-drishti (divine vision), to the blind king Dhrita-rāshṭra.

A Deeper Understanding of Kshetra

In his dialog with prince Arjuna, Sri Krishna expanded the notion of Kshetra (field) to the most fundamental level – the field of all existence, including all human experiences – through the human body and the soul (ātmā) in this way:

Verse B.2 and B.3

इदं शरीरं कौन्तेय क्षेत्रम् इति अभिधीयते
एतत् यो वेत्ति तं प्राहुः क्षेत्रज्ञ इति तद् विदः (BG 13.2)

महा-भूतानि अहंकारः बुद्धिः अव्यक्तम् एव च
इन्द्रियाणि दशैकं च पञ्च चेन्द्रिय-गोचराः (BG 13.6)

Idam sharīram kaunteya kshetram iti abhidheeyate etat yo vetti tam prāhuḥ kshetra-gya iti tad-vidah.
Mahā-bhūtāni ahankārah buddhiḥ avyaktam eva cha indriyāṇi dashaikam cha pancha chendriya-gocharāh.

Sri Krishna: This human body, O Prince, is known as the Kshetra, the Field of all human actions, or deeds in this life. It consists of the five macro-elements (Table 1).

Table 1

Five Macro-Elements (Mahā-bhūtā) in the Physical Universe

Five Macro-Elements	Common Translation	Real (Expanded) Meaning
Kshiti or Bhūmi	Earth	Solids
Jal or Āpaḥ	Water	Liquids
Agni or Pāvak	Fire	Heat, Light, Energy
Samīr or Vāyu	Air	Gases
Gagan or Ākāsh	Sky	Space

The physical body made of five macro-elements is called 'Sthoola Sharira' or Gross Body. Note that the entire physical universe is also made of the same five macro-elements.

Further Srī Krishna explained:

The body is supported by ten sense organs: five senses of cognition and five senses of action (Table 2). Additionally, it is equipped with the mind that controls the senses, the intellect that guides the mind, the subconscious that exerts unseen, hidden influences over the mind, and the ego which controls the human psyche.

Furthermore, the Kshetra (Field) also includes the sense “objects” embedded in the five macro-elements of the physical universe<sup>8</sup>. The five senses of cognition constantly interact with their objects as shown in Table 2 and give us the sensory perception of the physical world around us.

Table 2
Five Senses of Cognition (Gyāna Indriyān) and their Objects (Fields of Operation)

Sense Organs	Function	Sense Objects
Eyes	Vision	Field of vision: everything visible in the physical universe
Ears	Hearing	Field of sound: every sound that is audible to human ear
Nose	Smell	Field of all good and bad smells: scents, aromas, fumes and perfumes, ...
Tongue	Taste	All good and bad tastes: sweet, sour, pungent, bitter, creamy, ...
Skin	Touch	Feel of any thing touching the skin over any part of the body: soft, hard, harsh, abrasive, rough, smooth, hot, cold, warm, gentle, loving, caress ...

<sup>8</sup> The concept of Kshetra signifies unity of all energy fields in the universe. This idea of unity of all energy fields in the physical universe (gravitational field, electromagnetic field, ...) was followed by Albert Einstein as he tried to mathematically prove the Unified Field theory. This field of research is still continuing in modern physics.

The five senses of cognition: Eyes always seeing, ears hearing, nose smelling, tongue tasting, and skin feeling through touch (including the functions of nerves and brain) constantly provide us physical perception of the world around us.

Additionally, the five Action Organs (Karma Indriyān) also controlled by the mind are: Hands, feet, and organs of speech, procreation, and elimination.

'Sookshma Sharira' or 'Subtle body' is defined as an aspect of body consisting of eighteen elements: the mind, intellect, and ego, along with the five senses of cognition, five objects of sense cognition, and the five senses of action.

Lord Srī Krishna further added:

The ātmā governs this multi-dimensional Kshetra of ten senses, together with the mind, the intellect, the sub-conscious, and the ego; therefore, it is called the Kshetrasya (the Knower of the Field).

That word Kshetrasya, the Knower, refers to the base of intelligence, or consciousness that pervades the Kshetra in every cell of the body, and is called the ātmā. When ātmā departs (at death), the senses, the mind, and the intellect stop functioning, and know nothing, because the 'Knower of the field', the consciousness, has left the body. Read more about it in Lesson 4-A. Knowledge of the Self (ātmā or Spirit).

Thus, at the Adhyātmic level, Kshetrasya is ātmā; but at the universal (Daivik, divine) level, Kshetrasya is Paramātmā (Infinite Consciousness, Godhead, Brahman).

Hierarchy of Intelligence within the body (Kshetra)

B.4 इन्द्रियाणि पराण्याहर् इन्द्रियेभ्यः परं मनः
 मनसः तु परा बुद्धिः यो बुद्धेः परतः तु सः (BG 3.42)
 Indriyāṇi parāṇi āhur indriyebhyaḥ param manaḥ manasaḥ tu parā buddhiḥ yo buddheḥ parataḥ tu saḥ.

Srī Krishna further explained the heirarchy of intelligence pervading the Kshetra:

1. The five senses of perception continuously survey and collect information about the world around us and inform the mind.
2. The mind constantly monitors and controls the senses, develops cognition, and feelings of pleasure and pain.
3. The mind is guided and counseled by the intellect, thus intellect is superior to the mind.
4. Finally, superior to the intellect is He (who is the Kshetragya, the divine guide, the conscience, in the form of the soul, ātmā, in the body).

Let Your Conscience be Your Guide

B.5 एवं बुद्धेः परं बुद्ध्वा संस्तभ्य आत्मानम् आत्मना
जहि शत्रुं महाबाहो कामरूपं दुरासदम् (BG 3.43)

Evam buddheh param buddhvā sanstabhya ātmānam ātmanā jahi shatrum mahā-bāho kāma-rūpam durā.sadam.

Knowing that ātmā is superior to intellect, and restraining your lower self (ego, pride, anger, desires) by your higher Self (noble instinct, conscience, and intellect fortified with wisdom), O mighty-armed Prince, conquer the enemy that is ever present in the form of sensory cravings, obsessions, selfishness and greed, filled with multitude of desires.

But, be forewarned that this enemy (sensory cravings, obsessions, selfishness, anger and greed) is the hardest of all enemies to conquer.

This verse illustrates the overarching metaphor in Geetā: the war in “Dharma-kshetra Kuru-kshetra” is metaphorically the war within one’s own self, that which is hardest to conquer, and that which Sri Krisna asks Arjuna, the mighty-armed Prince, to engage in and try to win. Only after discovering our divine existence (higher self, ātmā) can we restrain the lower self (ego, pride, anger, desires) by the guidance of the Divine Self.

Lesson 1
Self-discipline
Controlling the Body and Mind
through the Intellect

Before treading on the path of spirituality, it is an essential prerequisite that one builds a strong foundation with moral values and principles that elevate human consciousness above the narrow bounds of greed, selfishness, and sectarianism. The first lesson contains verses from Geetā that encourage and guide us in developing a disciplined character that leads to success and inner happiness in life.

The Strong Pull of Senses

1.1 इन्द्रियाणां हि चरतां यन् -- मनो अनुविधीयते
तद् अस्य हरति प्रज्ञां -- वायुः नावम् इवाम्भसि (BG 2.67)

Indriyāṇām hi caratām yan mano anuvidheeyate tad asya harati pragyām vāyuh nāvam ivāmbhasi.

Lord Srī Krishna spoke to Prince Arjuna:

Senses of cognition are constantly interacting with their objects. Any one of the senses, at any given time, tends to pull the mind in its direction - in the same way as a powerful gust of wind pulls a sailboat across the water.

At times, driven by the sheer intensity of sense perceptions, one gets carried away – and loses one's intellect.

A sail boat pulled by wind across a body of water

- 1.2 यततो हि अपि कौन्तेय पुरुषस्य विपश्चितः
 इन्द्रियाणि प्रमाथीनि हरन्ति प्रसभं मनः (BG 2.60)
 Yatato hi api kaunteya purushasya vipaschitah indriyāṇi pramātheeni haranti prasabham manaḥ.

Even when a wise person of decent character strives for self-discipline, his mind can get carried away by his senses ... because they (senses) are very powerful and dynamic; constantly churning the stream of thoughts in one's mind. Be constantly on guard, dont get carried away!

The Sequence of Moral Destruction

- 1.3 ध्यायतो विषयान् पुंसः संगः तेषु उपजायते
 संग्गात् सञ्जायते कामः कामात् क्रोधःअभिजायते (BG 2.62)
 Dhyāyato vishayān punsaḥ sangaḥ teshu upajāyate sangāt Sanjāyate kāmah kāmāt krodhaḥ abhijāyate.

When a person dwells on an object of sensory gratification (food, music, any attractive object) a sort of attachment starts to build towards that object. From such attachment arises "desire", and when that desire is not fulfilled, it gives rise to anger and frustration.

- 1.4 क्रोधात् भवति सम्मोहः सम्मोहात् स्मृति विभ्रमः
 स्मृति भ्रंशात् बुद्धि नाशः बुद्धि नाशात् प्रणश्यति (BG 2.63)
 Krodhāt bhavati sammohaḥ sammohāt smriti vibhramaḥ
 Smriti bhranshāt buddhi-nāshaḥ buddhi-nāshāt praṇashyati.

Anger is a powerful emotion. It deludes the mind and destabilizes one's mental balance. Even his/her memory is disturbed with thoughts that further fuel the anger.

Due to the loss of rational thinking, episodes of anger can destroy the sanity of a person.

Lift Yourself with your Boot straps

1.5 उद्धरेत् आत्मना आत्मानम् न आत्मानम् अवासादयेत् आत्मैव हि आत्मनः बन्धुः आत्मैव रिपुः आत्मनः (BG 6.5)

Uddharet ātmanā ātmānam na ātmānam avasādayet ātmaiva hi ātmanah bandhuḥ ātmaiva ripuḥ ātmanah.

One must constantly strive to lift oneself by own higher Self (moral will power and determination), and be always on guard not to let oneself down (morally, spiritually).

Know that one's own higher Self (will power) is a friend that enables one to grow to one's fullest potential in all dimensions of human development. On the other hand, one's lower Self (degraded with bad habits) can become the enemy of oneself and totally ruin one's life!

1.6 बन्धुःआत्मा आत्मनः तस्य येन आत्मैव आत्मना जितः अनात्मनः तु शत्रुत्वे वर्तेत आत्मैव शत्रुवत् (BG 6.6)

Bandhuḥ ātmā ātmanah tasya yena ātmaiva ātmanā jitaḥ anātmānaḥ tu shatrutve varteta ātmaiva shatru-vat.

The Self is a friend of that virtuous one who has conquered his lower self (bad habits) with strong will power for positive development.

But, the Self acts as an enemy to the one who has not conquered his lower self, who can not shake off his Tamas based (bad) habits, anger and greed ...

The direction that one's life takes, and all major successes and failures in life are determined by which nature (lower self or higher self) is developed, and thus becomes predominant in life. Those who succeed in leading a happy, fulfilling life are the ones who have acquired good habits through self-control, supported by parents and family who provided good examples, and the company of friends who lift one up morally. Conversely, those who have not acquired good habits and self-control end up with unhappy lives.

Simple examples: By eating tamas/rajas foods one can become obese and prone to heart disease or stroke at an early age; indulging in promiscuity one may suffer abortions, divorce, never developing happy, harmonious, deeply satisfying relationships with spouse and children, or friends and extended family.

Students with self-control are able to study, do homework, play, and engage in appropriate extra-curricular activities. Those who do not exercise self-control, do not get good education, do not get professionally satisfying careers, nor do they succeed in personal or family life.<sup>9</sup>

The extreme examples of not cultivating self-control show up in the nightly news: frequent episodes of gun violence in schools, malls and public places in American society, binge drinking on college campuses, high incidence of fatal accidents and car crashes by American youth, and high incidence of date rapes. In 2010, the US Department of Justice estimated that 25 percent of college women "will be victims of rape or attempted rape before they graduate." Similarly, according to a US Commission on Civil Rights' Report in 2013, 23 percent of women in military reported experiencing unwanted sexual contact since their enlistment.

---

<sup>9</sup> "High Self-Control Predicts Good Adjustment, Less Pathology, Better Grades, and Interpersonal Success", June Tangney, Roy F. Baumeister, Angie Luzio Boone. Journal of Personality, Volume 72, Issue 2, pages 271–324, April 2004. Published online: 9 OCT 2008

Anger & Greed – Enemies of the Self

1.7 काम एष क्रोध एष रजोगुण समुद्भवः

महाशनो महापाप्मा विद्धि एनम् इह वैरिणम् (BG 3.37)

Kāma esha krodha esha rajo-guṇa-samudbhavaḥ mahāshano mahā-pāpmā viddhi enam iha vairiṇam.

Greed in the form of insatiable desires and anger (when desires are not fulfilled) are the products of the Rajas Guṇa*.

Desires have a huge appetite – they are never satisfied.
They always demand more.

Cravings, obsessions, greed and anger lead men to the greatest of sins. Know that uncontrolled desires and anger are the greatest enemies of the spiritual Self.

Kāma = profusion of desires not controlled or guided by intellect that is refined through wisdom and practice of Dharma.

- * There are three inherent qualities (Guṇa) that one is born with, but they can also be cultivated through self-discipline and will power.

Table 3
Three Qualities (Guṇa)

Guṇa	Characteristics
Sattva (Purity, goodness)	Pure, virtuous, knowledge seeker, living a simple, moral life of service to others
Rajas (Passion)	Selfish, egoistic, seeking fame and fortune by hook or crook, lacking morals, only serving personal interests.
Tamas (Ignorance)	Ignorant, evil, immoral, self destructive, not caring for others, ignoring his own and other's welfare.

See Appendix 1 for more details on these three Guṇa.

The Unending Mirage of Sensory Cravings and Greed

1.8 आशापाश-शतैः बद्धाः काम-क्रोध-परायणाः

ईहन्ते काम भोगार्थम् अन्यायेन अर्थ-सञ्चयान् (BG 16.12)

āshā-pāsha-shataih baddhāḥ kāma-krodha-parāyaṇāḥ īhante kāma-bhogārtham anyāyena artha-sanchayān.

Bound by infinite aspirations of acquiring more and more wealth, fame, and power... given to multitudes of desires (and anger when desires are not fulfilled) ... the worldly (materialistic, hedonistic) person strives, even by unlawful means, to amass wealth and objects of desire for enjoyment of the senses: more parties, more liquor, more loud (deafening) entertainment, more and bigger houses, more and fancier cars, bigger boats, fancier yachts, ...

Their lives become an unending mirage of acquisitions for sense gratification. Yet they never find peace - or happiness.

Lesson: Do not strive to collect wealth by unlawful or unfair means.

1.9 अहंकारं बलं दर्पम् कामं क्रोधं च संश्रिताः

माम् आत्म-पर-देहेषु प्रद्विषन्तो अभ्यसूयकाः (BG 16.18)

Ahankāram balam darpam kāmam krodham cha samshritāḥ mām ātma-para-deheshu pradvishanto abhyasūyakāḥ.

With their minds full of ego, they crave for more power, pride, and fulfillment of sensual desires and fall into fits of anger when desires are not fulfilled.

Such conceited people look down upon and curse everyone thus despising the divine who is present in every human as soul (ātmā).

The sense of this verse is that God is present in every soul, therefore, everyone is deserving of respect (that's why we greet everyone with Namaste). But, arrogant people, ignorant of the presence of God in their own self and in others, despise others, thus despising God.

Controlling Bhoga – Conspicuous Consumption

1.10 भोगैश्वर्यं प्रसक्तानां तया अपहृत चेतसाम्
व्यवसाय आत्मिका बुद्धिः समाधौ न विधीयते (BG 2.44)

Bhoga aishvarya prasaktānām tayā apahrīta-chetasām
Vyavasāya ātmikā buddhiḥ samādhaū na vidheeyate.

Those who are constantly engaged in the unfettered enjoyment of senses (Bhoga) and in acquiring more and more wealth, fame and glory (Aishwarya), whose minds are deluded by the fallacy (that they can fulfill their desires by doing yagnās or worshipping deities) they can not focus their minds on what is truly important in life: attaining peace in a state of Samādhi: the state of tranquil mind in union with God.

1.11 राग-द्वेष-वियुक्तैस्तु विषयान् इन्द्रियैः चरन्
आत्मवश्यैः विधेयात्मा प्रसादम् अधिगच्छति (BG 2.64)

Raag-dvesha-viyuktaiḥ tu vishayān indriyaiḥ charan ātma-vashyaiḥ vidheyātmā prasādam adhigachchati.

A person exercising self-control avoids strong attractions and repulsions even as his/her senses freely roam through the objects of senses (sights, sounds, smells, ...).

By keeping their senses in a balanced state under the guidance of their intellect, they experience the eternal peace (Moksha).

Read the following verse for more specific instructions from Sri Krisna.

1.12 यस्तु इन्द्रियाणि मनसा नियम्य आरभते अर्जुन
 कर्मेन्द्रियैः कर्मयोगम् असक्तः स विशिष्यते (BG 3.7)

Yas tu indriyāṇi manasā niyamya ārabhate Arjuna karmendriyaiḥ karma-yogam asaktaḥ sa vishishyate.

The one who controls his mind and senses by his intellect and engages his organs of action (hand, feet, speech, etc.) in Karma Yoga, i.e., Selfless Service, without attachment to personal gain, O Prince, he indeed is distinguished and excels in life.

In a well disciplined individual, ego functions under the control of the Divine instinct in him. When that happens, then impure impulses arising from sense objects do not disturb his mental balance or his inner peace.

Thus Geeta teaches a constructive disciplining of body, senses, mind, and intellect to enable a person to attain the highest potential from one's life, and not the denial, destruction, or rejection of life's possibilities.

Read more about

- controlling senses through Meditation in Lesson 2, Dhyāna Yoga and
- about Karma Yoga, selfless service without attachment, in Lesson 3.

Consequences of uncontrolled Greed and Sensory Gratification:

If we carefully analyze the cause of human misery and social strife, we will find that the root cause is the lack of restraint and discipline over Tamas and Rajas tendencies: indulgence in unbridled greed and sensory gratification. For example:

- Americans make up only 5% of the global population, yet they consume 25% of the Earth's resources. Obviously, this is not sustainable in the long run. As the rest of the world copies this model of development and (over) consumption as the hallmark of progress, the planet Earth can not sustain the population.
- Global warming has the potential to destroy human civilization on Earth. What is the root cause? The greed of industrialized nations who are constantly striving to acquire more and more wealth to improve their standard of living (which is already the highest in the world). They seldom pause to think: what is the purpose of my life? Is chasing after more and more material goods the ultimate objective of life? Or, what kind of planet are we leaving behind for our children? They follow the notion that the objective of life is to get bigger houses, bigger cars, more meat in the family diet, even though it is well established that (1) this mentality produces stress which is the root cause of many diseases, and (2) eating meat is bad for health. The meat industry, along with the fossil fuels, are the biggest enemies of the environment.
- U.S., the richest country in the world, has an epidemic of obesity and the incidence of obesity, diabetes, and heart disease is increasing in all developed (rich) and developing societies of the world. If we examine the root causes, we'll find a vicious circle: (1) Food processing industry producing junk food - items that are nutritionally deficient, even disease inducing, but appealing to taste buds, so people buy and consume their products in ever greater quantities. (2) Over-consumption of foods that are tasteful but loaded with chemically processed meats, harmful fats, salt and sugar, and food intake that is in excess of the needs of the body. Driven by taste buds, people indulge in junk foods rather than natural foods like vegetables, fruits, grains and beans. At the same time, over consumption produces scarcity of food, raises food prices and deprives poor people here and in other parts of the world. (3) Stress due to constant striving to earn more, to consume more processed food, resulting in obesity, diabetes and heart disease. (4) The food industry and the medical, pharmaceutical, and health insurance industries are growing, but there is no cure to the epidemic of obesity, diabetes, hypertension and heart disease.

- Binge drinking on elite college campuses, date rapes, sexual assault in military service, widespread dissemination of pornographic material on the web, promiscuity in sexual relations, have risen (or have come to light) during the twenty first century in all progressive societies. Why? The so-called 'advanced societies' have promoted the idea of instant sense gratification, freedom to do what your heart and mind desire without cultivating the idea of self-responsibility, self-control, self-discipline, or moral values. They are developing über-liberal societies where the philosophy is instant gratification and unbridled enjoyment of the senses.
- Moral corruption in business and political leaders is increasing all over the world. Why? Because, the leaders who have the power to accumulate egregious amounts of wealth do not care how their corrupt behavior affects the millions of people in their market or jurisdiction. They have not learned to exercise self-control. The most powerful among men are overpowered by greed. Examples abound: In the twenty first century, we have witnessed greed of the highest paid CEOs on Wall Street, who implemented devious schemes to sell mortgages to poor families who can not afford mortgage payments. They consequently lost their homes and hard-earned life's savings while CEOs and high paid executives made millions of dollars in bonuses. The entire US economy, and world economy, went into a tailspin. This illustrates the need for character education in K-12 schools, colleges and professional institutions.
- The divide between rich and poor, have and have-nots, is increasing in the world. The reason? Again, those who have the means, but not the moral discipline to control their greed, indulge in hoarding material objects and comforts of life for themselves, not caring for others who go without the daily necessities of life. Executives are paid astronomical sums of money while hard working men and women on the assembly lines are not paid enough to pay the rent and buy food for the family.

These examples bring home the need for self-discipline, control of greed, and tempered sense gratification for people who want to lead happy spiritual life, who aspire to preserve the planet for future generations, and who would like to take responsibility to build and lead just and humane societies. The free world must develop such leaders so that the planet Earth can sustain the future generations.

Some people misunderstand that exercising restraint over one's senses means denying themselves all the enjoyments of life. That is not true. On the contrary, a self-disciplined person truly enjoys life, as it was meant to be, and fulfills the purpose of life while allowing others in the society to enjoy their lives too.

According to Swāmi Chinmayānanda, self-discipline means that the sense-objects (desirable items: food, sex, money, etc.) and greed should not overpower faculties of rational thinking, neglecting consideration of one's own health and well being, along with that of others in their families and societies. A self disciplined person is not overwhelmed by greed or desire for sense gratification and does not lose objectivity or power of discrimination between right or wrong in a given situation, or sense of personal responsibility.

Geetā's essential message is this: One should not fall prey to greed or unbridled sense gratification. Self discipline leads to a balanced human life leading to peace and personal development, peaceful co-existence of all human beings in a civilized society, and preservation of planet Earth for future generations.

References for further reading:

1. "Hooked! Buddhist Writings on Greed, Desire, and the Urge to Consume"
Dr. Stephanie Kaza, Professor, University of Vermont (Shambhala, 2005)
2. "A gradient of childhood self-control predicts health, wealth, and public safety" edited by James J. Heckman, University of Chicago, published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences (PNAS), found that children with good self-control grew into adults who were typically healthier, wealthier, more law-abiding and less prone to addictions than their more impulsive peers.
3. "Rearming Hinduism: Nature, Hinduphobia, and the Return of Indian Intelligence" by Vamsee Juluri, Professor of Media Studies, University of San Francisco.

Introducing Four Paths of Yoga

What is Yoga?

Yoga is a Sanskrit word, in the same sense of the English word 'yoke'. It means Union of ātmā (Self) with Paramātmā (Supreme Self, Brahman, Godhead); That is the final objective of yoga.

Sri Krishna expounded four spiritual paths (yoga traditions) to attain liberation (Moksha) by uniting Self (ātmā) with the Supreme Self (Paramātmā):

1. Dhyāna Yoga – By meditating, one attains a tranquil mind, experiences peace, contentment and bliss, and ultimately union (yoga) with Paramātmā, which is the end objective of human life.
2. Karma Yoga – By doing selfless service to society: neighborhood, city, state, nation, or the whole world- according to one's ability- one can attain Moksha. Such work is worship.
3. Gyāna Yoga - By acquiring the true knowledge of Self (ātmā) and Paramātmā, and Samsāra, i.e., reincarnation of ātmā in the cycle of birth and death, one can become enlightened and attain liberation (Moksha) from the cycle of life and death, and union (yoga) with Paramātmā.
4. Bhakti Yoga – By steadfast devotion and loving surrender to God (Paramātmā) in any name and form, or aspect of God (Deva or Devī), one can attain liberation (Moksha).

Bhakti (devotion), by various names, is the common tradition in world religions; Dharmic (Hindu, Jain, Sikh and Buddhist) as well as Western, Abrahamic religions (Christianity, Judaism, and Islam).

The fundamental set of beliefs in ātmā, Paramātmā, reincarnation and, ultimately, Moksha, comprise the core tenets of Hindu religion. Starting from the Vedas, the most ancient Hindu scriptures, these concepts have been sustained through many thousands of years. They permeate all Hindu scriptures and teachings of swāmis, saints and gurus. Many Western New Age 'Spiritual Gurus', writers, speakers, and yoga teachers also have learnt from this body of knowledge and it informs the core ideas of their messages (although many of them do not credit the Hindu origins of 'their' ideas).

The essence of these Hindu concepts is known as Vedānta (final knowledge of the Vedas). These concepts are expounded in 108 Upanishads and distilled in Geetā. Their variations are also found in other Dharmic traditions of India (Jain, Sikh and Buddhist tradition).

Why Four Paths? Why not just One Path for Every One?

- I.1 ध्यानेन आत्मनि पश्यन्ति केचिद् आत्मानम् आत्मना
अन्ये सांख्येन योगेन कर्म योगेन चापरे (BG 13.25)
Dhyānena ātmani pashyanti kechid ātmānam ātmānā anye sāṅkhyena yogena karma-yogena chāpare.

According to their own in-born inclinations, temperaments, tendencies and aptitudes, ...

Some behold the Supreme Self in their own soul through meditation; others know the Self through the path of Knowledge (Gyāna Yoga); still others by the path of Selfless Service (Karma Yoga)
And yet others through devotion (Bhakti Yoga)

Of the four yogas:

- ❖ Karma Yoga is suited to those who are motivated to offer their service to God through selfless service to humanity through their body, mind, and intellect.
- ❖ Bhakti Yoga is suited to those who are inclined to offer service, love and devotion to God with their heart.
- ❖ Gyāna Yoga is suited to those who have a keen desire to know why they were born and what is the purpose of their life, and
- ❖ Dhyāna Yoga is suited to those who want to find the Divine within their own Self (Ātmā) awakening their higher self through the stages of meditation.

By practicing any one of these yogas, one can attain the Supreme bliss. However, Karma and Gyāna Yoga may be more suitable for the left-brained, and Bhakti Yoga for the right-brained people. Dhyāna Yoga helps balance the right and left brains.

While one can start spiritual practices (Sādhanā) with any one yoga based on their aptitude or personality type, with the passage of time one develops a coherent view and integrates all four yogas in their Sādhanā.

But, what if I can not devote so much time to spirituality?

I.2 नेह अभिक्रम नाशोस्ति प्रत्यवायो न विद्यते

स्वल्पम् अपि अस्य धर्मस्य त्रायते महतो भयात् (BG 2.40)

Neh abhikrama nāshosti pratyavāyo na vidyate svalpam api asya dharmasya trāyate mahato bhayāt.

Sri Krishna Says:

Any effort on the path of spirituality never goes to waste, and there is no failure, nor is there any harm.

Even a little knowledge and practice of Dharma (spiritual path), will protect you from the greatest fears and worries (what the future holds for me?)

People suffer from many fears even when they have attained material prosperity. Anxiety and depression are the most common ailments in advanced societies. Material prosperity, without spirituality, does not render lasting security. That comes only through spiritual practice!

I.3 प्राप्य पुण्यकृतां लोकान् उषित्वा शाश्वतीः समाः

शुचीनां श्रीमतां गेहे योगभ्रष्टो अभिजायते (BG6.41)

Prāpya puṇya-kritām lokān ushitvā shāsvateeh samāḥ shucheenām shreematām gehe yoga-bhrasṭo 'bhijāyate.

Even if your spiritual practice (yoga sādhanā) in this life has not reached the height of perfection and you do not achieve liberation (Moksha - union with the Divine), you would have earned merit (punya) that would enable you to go to heaven and experience the divine bliss for a long period of time.

After your merits (punyas) are exhausted, you would be born in to a pure (sāttvic) family so that you could continue your spiritual journey onward.

Lesson 2

Dhyāna Yoga: The Path of Meditation For Inner Peace

What is Dhyāna Yoga?

Stilling and purifying the mind through introspection, developing transcendental connection and finally union with the Universal Consciousness, the Supreme, Brahman, in the last stages of meditation, i.e. Samādhi, is called Dhyāna Yoga.

In Lesson 1, we learned in the last verse (BG 3.7) Srī Krishna's advice to Prince Arjuna to control his mind and senses by his intellect through the practice of meditation. However, meditation can not be learnt by reading a book. It has to be learnt through a teacher, a master, a Guru, and it has to be practiced regularly to gain the experience of peace and tranquility, and ultimately a glimpse of the Universal Consciousness, the Supreme. Therefore, I have selected twelve verses from Geetā that provide the background and reveal the ultimate experience of yoga in the final stage, Samādhi. This would provide a strong motivation to practice meditation regularly.

Patanjali's Yoga Sūtras Ashtānga (eight limbs) of Yoga

Before reading the selected verses from Geetā, it is advisable for a student of Dhyāna Yoga to fully understand its context from Rishi (sage) Patanjali's Yoga Sūtras where he has described the eight limbs (Ashtānga) of Yoga Sādhanā (practice), as follows:

1. Yama (five principles of ethical conduct; Hindu moral code): Ahimsā (Non-violence), Satya (Truthfulness), Asteya (Honesty), Brahmacharya (Divine conduct) and Aparigraha (No greed).
More fully described in Appendix 2.

2. Niyama (virtues): Shaucha (Self-purification - inner and outer), Santosh (Contentment), Tapas (Self-discipline), Swādhyāy (Self-study and reflection) and Ishvar Pranidhān (Surrender to God). Also Kshamā (forgiveness), Dayā (compassion), Dhriti (steadfastness) mentioned in other sources and described in Appendix 2.

Yama and Niyama are the ethical precepts set forth as the first two limbs of yoga. It is essential to practice them before one can progress on the path of yoga, or any spiritual advancement.

3. Āsana (physical exercises) required to improve flexibility before one can sit motionless for a long period of time (30 minutes or more) to practice meditation. This is the only practice popularly (but mistakenly) called Yogā in the West.

4. Prāṇāyama (breathing exercises) to improve physical and mental health, a prerequisite to Meditation. Breath regulation helps control mental agitation.

5. Pratyāhāra (drawing one's mental activity inward) withdrawing the senses from their objects (as in closing the eyes), introspection.

6. Dhāraṇā (concentration) stilling the chatter of the mind, focusing the mind on breath, or a word (Soham or Hansa or Hongsa), sound (Oum) or a mantra (e.g., Shivoam, normally provided by a Guru)

7. Dhyāna (meditation); concentration on the inner Self (ātmā).

8. Samādhi, the ultimate goal of yoga: experiencing bliss in the realm of Universal Consciousness that is Sat Chit Ānand (pure, consciousness, bliss).

Scientific experiments conducted during the twentieth century have proven that regular practice of yoga āsanās, Prānāyām and Dhyāna (meditation) provides numerous benefits for physical and mental health, including prevention and control of stress, and stress-related diseases like anxiety and depression, without using any chemicals (drugs) for treatment.

Therefore these techniques have been widely adopted in Eastern and Western culture.<sup>10</sup> However, the benefits of Yama, Niyama, and advanced stages of meditation (Samādhi) are not well understood, appreciated, nor practiced.

The Great Buddha (Daibutsu) seated in a state of meditation a 44 feet high bronze statue of Amitābha Buddha in Kamakura, Japan. Buddha's teachings of spiritual way of life with yoga and meditation spread throughout China, Japan, Korea, and Southeast Asia during the last two thousand years. Now also finding world-wide acceptance in the USA and the western world.

---

<sup>10</sup> 'Zen and the art of management', by John Paul Rathbone, published in Financial Times September 16, 2013 at this link:
<http://www.ft.com/cms/s/2/32e0b9b4-1c5f-11e3-8894-00144feab7de.html#axzz2fmMlvGAc>

Introduction to Yoga

2.1 नास्ति बुद्धिःअयुक्तस्य न च अयुक्तस्य भावना न च अभावयतः शान्तिः अशान्तस्य कुतः सुखम् (BG 2.66)

Nāsti buddhiḥ ayuktasya na chāyuktasya bhāvanā na cha abhāvayataḥ shāntiḥ ashāntasya kutaḥ sukham.

One who is not disciplined, who exercises no control over his mind and senses, can not reach his full potential of intellectual development, or emotional maturity. Such a person can not hope to rise to full spiritual development.

One who is constantly buffeted by the roller coaster of emotions, pursuing sensory gratifications, can not find peace of mind. Without peace of mind, how can one find lasting happiness?

2.2 युक्त-आहार-विहारस्य युक्त-चेष्टस्य कर्मसु युक्त-स्वप्न-अवबोधस्य योगः भवति दुःख-हा (BG 6.17)

Yukta-āhāra-vihārasya yukta-cheshtasya karmasu yukta-svapna- avabodhasya yogaḥ bhavati dukha-hā.

Following a disciplined life with moderate* effort (not too much, not too little) <sup>11</sup> into appropriate, Sāttvic productive work, appropriate and Sāttvic food, Sāttvic recreation, and adequate sleep, the practice of yoga gradually removes all physical, mental and emotional distress and discomfort.

A disciplined life with moderation in food, work, sleep, recreation, etc, is a pre-requisite to advancing further on the path of yoga.

* Elizabeth Gilbert (author of “Eat Pray Love”) after traveling to India:
“The race to always be the fastest, richest, most productive and best can become a killing addiction. I push against that force with all my might.”

<sup>11</sup> This is what Buddha called the “Middle Path”: not too much, not too little. Avoid extremes.

Preparation for meditation

- 2.3 प्रशान्त-आत्मा विगतभीः ब्रह्मचारि व्रते स्थितः
मनः संयम्य मत् चित्तः युक्तः आसीत् मत् परः (BG 6.14)

Prashānta-ātmā vigata-bheeh brahmachāri-vrate sthitaḥ manaḥ sanyamya mat-chittaḥ yuktaḥ āseeta mat-paraḥ.

With a deep feeling of peace in his heart, a calm, fearless disposition, well established in pure (divine) conduct, concentrating his/her mind on Me as the Supreme Goal in life, the disciplined yogi sits down for meditation.

- 2.4 तत्र एकाग्रम् मनः कृत्वा यत-चित्त- इन्द्रिय-क्रियः
उपविश्य आसने युञ्ज्यात् योगम् आत्म-विशुद्धये (BG 6.12)

Tatra ekāgram manaḥ kritvā yata-chittendriya-kriyaḥ upavishya āsane yunjyāt yogam ātma-vishuddhaye.

Seated in a comfortable position on a suitable āsana (a padded seat or folded blanket) calming the mind and senses to a fully relaxed state, focusing the mind on Me alone, one enters the meditative state (Dhyāna Yoga) for self purification.

How to Control the Wandering Mind?

As Lord Krishna explained the need to control the mind and senses for Dhyāna Yoga Prince Arjuna expressed doubt and hesitation.

Prince Arjuna raised a concern:

2.5 चञ्चलं हि मनःकृष्ण प्रमाथि बलवद्दृढम्
तस्याहं निग्रहं मन्ये वायोः इव सुदुष्करम् (BG 6.34)
Chanchalam hi manaḥ krishna pramāthi balavad dṛḍham tasyāham nigraham manye vāyoh iva su-dushkaram.

O' Lord Krishna, the mind is very fickle; its always moving from one thought, or object to another, it is by nature quite restless, dynamic, and also very powerful and tenacious.

Controlling the thought streams of the mind is as difficult as controlling a powerful gust or wind storm.

2.6 असंशयं महाबाहो मनः दुर्निग्रहं चलम्
अभ्यासेन तु कौन्तेय वैराग्येण च गृह्यते (BG 6.35)
Asanshayam mahā-bāho manaḥ durnigraham chalam abhyāsena tu kaunteya vairāgyeṇa cha grihyate

To this, Srī Krishna replied:

O mighty-armed Prince, the mind is undoubtedly very difficult to control and it is very restless, indeed.

But, it can be restrained with continuous diligent practice, and by developing a rational and objective view of the ultimate futility of all worldly pleasures in providing a lasting source of happiness<sup>12</sup>.

<sup>12</sup> When the Beatles came to the realization that they were not really happy in spite of all the sources of enjoyment for worldly pleasures that they had acquired and experienced in their young life through their phenomenal success in the field of entertainment, they came to the rational conclusion of the ultimate futility of worldly pleasures and followed Maharshi Mahesh Yogi to his āshram in Rishikesh (India) to learn transcendental meditation.

Lord Krishna further instructed:

2.7 यतो यतो निश्चरति मनः चञ्चलम् अस्थिरम्
ततः ततो नियम्य एतत् आत्मनि एव वशं नयेत् (BG 6.26)

Yato yato nischarati manah chanchalam asthiram tatah tato niyamy etat ātmani eva vasham nayet.

O Prince, remember, whenever the mind wanders away, or becomes unsteady, the practicing yogi gently brings it back, and again concentrates his mind into the consciousness of the Higher Self, the Brahman.

Reaching the Final Stages of Yoga (Samādhi)

2.8 यथा दीपो निवातस्थो न इंगते सोपमा स्मृता योगिनो यत-चित्तस्य युञ्जतो योगम् आत्मनः (BG 6.19)

Yathā deepo nivāta-stho na ingate sopamā smritā yogino yata-chittasya yunjato yogam ātmanah.

Here is a simile describing the state of chitta (deepest levels of thoughts in the mind) of a yogi:

The chitta of a yogi absorbed in yoga (union with the Self) remains as steady as the lamp that is placed in a quiet place where there is no movement, no wind gust. The jyoti of the lamp in such place does not flicker, it is completely steady; so is the chitta of the yogi. It is completely steady; it does not deviate from its one-pointed focus on the Self, not at all.

2.9 यत्र उपरमते चित्तं निरुद्धं योग-सेवया

यत्र चैव आत्मना आत्मानं पश्यन् आत्मनि तुष्यति (BG 6.20)

Yatra uparamate chittam niruddham yoga-sevayā yatra chaiva ātmanā ātmānam pashyan ātmani tushyati.

When in samādhi, the chitta (steady mind), restrained by the practice of yoga, attains quietude, then the yogi sees, or finds, or gets in touch with his inner Self by his own Self (through deep introspection).

At that point, he finds a source of great contentment within his own inner Self.

Ordinarily, the mind of a human being is constantly in flux as Arjuna stated in his question (verse 2.5). In this constantly agitated, perturbed state, one can not see his inner self as one can not see his face in a lake with rippling waves. But when the wind is not blowing and the waves are completely calm, one can see his face clearly in the still waters of the lake.

The same analogy holds here. When the mind is perfectly calm, only then can one see, or get in touch with one's inner self.

The Essential Unity and Equality of All Souls

2.10 प्रशान्त-मनसं ह्येनं योगिनं सुखम् उत्तमम्
उपैति शान्त रजसं ब्रह्म भूतम् अकल्मषम् (BG 6.27)

Prashānta-manasam hi enam yoginam sukham uttamam upaiti śhānta-rajasaṁ brahma-bhūtam akalmasham

Yogi whose mind is completely at peace, who is free from sin, whose passions (Rajas Guṇa) are subdued, whose Tamas is vanquished, such a yogi attains one-ness with the Brahman and experiences Supreme Bliss.

2.11 सर्व-भूत-स्थम् आत्मानं सर्व-भूतानि चात्मनि
ईक्षते योग-युक्तात्मा सर्वत्र समदर्शनः (BG 6.29)

Sarva-bhūta-stham ātmānam sarva-bhūtāni chātmani eekshate yoga-yuktātmā sarvatra sama-darshanah

A yogi established in deep meditation sees the same Self abiding in all beings, and all beings abiding in one's own Self. Thus, he sees an essential unity and one-ness among all beings everywhere in the world.

To take the first step in the journey to understand and appreciate the equality of all beings at the yogic level, just contemplate on the web of life starting with the simple observation that the air you breathe is the same air other human beings (and other living beings) breathe; that you breathe-in (inhale) the air that was exhaled by other beings. Even trees inhale CO2 and exhale oxygen which supports the life of all humans and other beings on planet Earth.

Ideas derived from the verse:

“Our individual liberty is inexplicably tied to the liberty of every soul on earth.” -
Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Lesson 3

Karma Yoga: Work is Worship when it is done in the Spirit of Selfless Service

What is Karma Yoga?

In the west, there is a false notion of Karma as fate. That is totally incorrect. Indeed, Karma is the theory of 'Action (deeds) and Reaction' (consequences of the actions one performs). Understanding that good and bad deeds have definite consequences later in this life (or the next life/live(s) guides one on the path of right action<sup>13</sup> and selfless service (as opposed to selfish conduct).

In the new generation, the 'Me generation', people ask — what is in it for me? In Geetā, Sri Krishna exhorts Prince Arjuna to devote life to selfless service, rejecting selfish conduct prevalent in the society.

“ life is short, the vanities of the world are transient, but they alone live who live for others; the rest are more dead than alive.” - Swāmi Vivekānanda

---

<sup>13</sup> Buddha expanded the concept of Karm Yoga to the “eight-fold path” of Right belief, Right thought, speech, action, occupation, effort, mindfulness and meditation.

Introducing Karm Yoga

3.1 यतः प्रवृत्तिः भूतानां येन सर्वम् इदम् ततम्
स्वकर्मणा तम् अभ्यर्च्य सिद्धिं विन्दति मानवः (BG 18.46)

Yataḥ pravṛtitiḥ bhūtānām yena sarvam idam tatam sva-karmaṇā tam abhyarchya siddhim vindati mānavaḥ.

Worshipping through one's deeds the Supreme from whom all beings evolve, and by whom all this (universe) is pervaded, man attains the ultimate success.

Mahātmā Gāndhi, a true karma yogi, on protest march against the British colonial occupation of India.

Gandhi drew inspiration from Geetā for all his sacrifice and selfless service fighting evil and violence with peaceful means, without resorting to violence.

Karma Yoga is Selfless Service (Nishkāma Karma)

3.2 अनाश्रितः कर्म-फलं कार्यं कर्म करोति यः
स संन्यासी च योगी च न निरग्नः न च अक्रियः (BG 6.1)

Anāshritaḥ karma-phalam kāryam karma karoti yaḥ
Sa sannyāsi cha yogi cha na niragniḥ na cha akriyaḥ

One who works diligently and discharges all their responsibilities as selfless service to others, in a responsible manner, without constantly worrying about the results, is a Karma yogi and a true sanyāsee.

Srī Krishna emphasized that true sanyāsee is not the one who renounces work and family, but the one who performs his responsibilities as above.

3.3 तस्मात् असक्तः सततं कार्यं कर्म समाचर
असक्तो हि आचरन् कर्म परम् आप्नोति पूरुषः (BG 3.19)

Tasmāt asaktaḥ satatam kāryam karma samāchara
Asakto hi ācharan karma param āpnoti pūrushaḥ

Therefore, always perform selfless actions for others, actions that you are capable of, that are appropriate at your stage of life. Perform them as a matter of duty, without attachment to the results.

By performing selfless actions without attachment to results (selfish motives), man attains the Supreme bliss.

Characteristics of an Enlightened Leader

3.4 कर्मणा एव हि संसिद्धिम् आस्थिताः जनकादयः
लोक-संग्रहम् एव अपि सम्पश्यन् कर्तुम् अर्हसि (BG 3.20)

Karmaṇā eva hi samsiddhim āsthitāḥ janakādayaḥ loka-sangraham eva api sampashyan kartum arhasi.

Srī Krishna advised Prince Arjuna on how to be a true leader:

O Prince, King Janaka<sup>14</sup> and other great leaders of men have attained Perfection (liberation) by constantly performing actions without selfish interest.

As a leader of society, you must always perform actions with a view to the welfare and protection of the masses, Loka-sangraham.

“Loka-sangraham stands for the unity of the world, the interconnectedness of society. If the world is not to sink into a condition of physical misery and moral degradation, if the common life is to be decent and dignified, religious ethics must control social action. The aim of religion is to spiritualize society, to establish a brotherhood on earth.” Dr. S. Radhakrishnan, author, philosopher, Professor of Eastern Religion and Ethics at the University of Oxford (1936-1952), President of India (1962-1967).

<sup>14</sup>

King Janak, the father of Sītā, ruled a state in present day Nepal. He is known as a sage and a king, as he lived the life of an enlightened saint and worked selflessly for the good of his subjects. (Sita was wife of Rāma, the incarnation of Vishnu many thousands of years ago in Tretā yug). Sri Rāma also demonstrated through his personal example the leadership qualities of an enlightened ruler. He ruled the great state of Avadh with its capital in Ayodhya in such an exemplary manner that, to this day, Rāma Rājya is considered an ideal standard for kings, rulers, and heads of governments. Rāma is called ‘Maryāda Purushottam’ (a man of perfection, with highest ideals, a standard bearer). More than a Billion people in South Asia, South-east Asia, and other parts of the world follow the ideals established by Rāma as their Dharma.

3.5 यत् यत् आचरति श्रेष्ठः तत् तत् एव इतरो जनः
सः यत् प्रमाणं कुरुते लोकः तत् अनुवर्तते (BG 3.21)

Yat yat ācharati shresthaḥ tat tat eva itaro janah saḥ yat pramāṇam kurute lokaḥ tat anuvartate.

Whatever a great man, a true leader, does, others follow him, emulate his character;
whatever standard of conduct he sets up, others try to live up to that.

Ideals of Enlightened Leadership

- In the fifth century BCE, Buddha, born Siddhārtha Gautama, a prince in North India, left home and practiced and preached Dhyāna Yoga (meditation, The Essential Unity and Equality of All Beings) and Karma Yoga (selfless service to humanity). The four noble truths Buddha propounded are:
  - Life is a struggle, filled with end-less suffering.
  - Attachment to objects is the cause of suffering.
  - Suffering can be ended by attaining dispassion – performing selfless service to humanity.
  - Dispassion can be achieved with the noble eight-fold path based on principles of Dharma: right belief, thought, speech, action, occupation, effort, mindfulness and meditation.

Today, seven hundred million people all over the world follow Buddha as their spiritual master.
- In the twentieth century, Mahātmā Gāndhi literally followed Srī Krishna's advice in Geetā verse 3.20 and 3.21 and launched a Satyāgrah (a true revolution) to free India from the clutches of the cruel and unjust British colonial rule. Masses emulated his behavior and followed his courageous, non-violent example of disobeying the laws of a foreign ruler, laws that were aimed at robbing India in order to enrich England. India was freed due to mass uprisings following Gāndhi's peaceful leadership, which was based on universal principles of justice and equality of all human beings. Gāndhi worked selflessly, with a duty to remove the unjust occupation of India by a mighty foreign power, while never fretting over whether he would win or lose, succeed or fail, just as advised by Srī Krishna in Karma Yoga in Bhagvad Geetā.

Following his success in removing the unjust colonial rule from India, many world leaders, including Dr Martin Luther King, Jr. in USA and Nelson Mandela in South Africa, followed his example to liberate their people from slavery and colonial rule in a non-violent manner.

Today billions of people all over the world – in Europe, Africa and the Americas – follow the spiritual ideals of fighting injustice, ending slavery, and bringing equality to humanity through non-violent action, just as practiced by Mahātmā Gāndhi.

On the other hand, in times when selfless service to society was not an ideal of leadership, the selfish side of men has gone to such great extents as to create so many glorified villains (albeit declared heroes and conquerors) who committed monstrous atrocities towards innocent masses, who tried to dominate the entire world for their personal (or national) aggrandizement using weapons of mass destruction. Examples abound: Alexander (the Great), Genghis Khan, Hitler, Stalin, Churchill and the leaders of World war I, World war II, the Japanese Empire, the Spanish Empire, the British Empire: "the empires on which the sun never sets"!

Ethical leaders create an ethical society
An ethical society creates ethical leaders.

References for further reading:

1. Two Birds in a Tree: Timeless Indian Wisdom for Business Leaders – by Ram Nidumolu, Berrett-Koehler Publishers, Inc. San Francisco.
2. Happiness is You – by Dr. Siddharth B. Gautam, CreateSpace, North Charleston, SC

DO's and DON'T's of Karma

3.6 कर्मणि एव अधिकारः ते मा फलेषु कदाचन
मा कर्मफल हेतुः भूः मा ते संगोस्तु अकर्मणि (BG 2.47)

Karmaṇi eva adhikāraḥ te mā phaleṣhu kadāchana mā karma-phala hetuḥ bhūḥ mā te sangostu akarmani.

You have certain obligations and responsibilities at every stage in life (Table 4), and freedom of action to choose how you discharge your duties.

However, you must remember that all actions (Karmas) have consequences. (Karma-phala = fruits of your karmas.) The overarching message here is that you shall reap (eventually) what you sow. But you do not have control over those consequences, because they are compounded, or affected by previous karmas in this life (or a previous life).

Furthermore, do not perform actions merely for selfish reasons (for the fruits of your actions), nor withdraw into inaction (why should I work if I'd gain nothing from it?).
Do not shirk from your responsibilities.

Again, the message is: simply carry out your responsibilities to the best of your abilities, without worrying about the results.

This is called Nishkām Karma Yoga (discharging ones responsibilities in life without selfish motives, e.g., desire for personal gain).

This is best illustrated by the sportsman's spirit or the ethos of sportsman-ship widely appreciated all over the world:

“Play the best game, to the best of your skills and abilities, in the fairest manner; never mind whether you win or lose!”

Five thousand years ago, Geetā taught us to conduct our whole life according to this noble spirit.

What is wrong with the selfish motive and attachment to the results?

Again this can be explained more simply with the sports analogy. Now a days, many players have taken to winning the game by any means, at any cost. This includes: taking drugs to build muscle, and psychologically or even physically harming the opponent. Because they are attached to achieving a win for themselves, they do not consider ill-effects of their actions on themselves or others. Sportsmanship teaches otherwise.

The first line of the verse goes against the prevailing norm. In modern societies, everyone wants to claim and defend their rights – but not their responsibilities. The last time a western leader courageously spoke out about responsibilities over rights was President John F. Kennedy who, in his inaugural speech, uttered these famous words that energized a whole generation of Americans:

Ask not what the country can do for you. Ask what you can do for the country!
His words echo the message of Geetā in verse BG2.47.

3.7 युक्तः कर्मफलं त्यक्त्वा शान्तिम् आप्नोति नैष्ठिकीम् अयुक्तः काम-कारेण फले सक्तो निबध्यते (BG 5.12)
Yuktaḥ karma-phalam tyaktvā shāntim āpnoti naiṣṭhikīm ayuktaḥ kāma-kāreṇa phale sakto nibadhyate.

The Karma yogi, practicing selfless service, relinquishing the desire for personal gain (fruit of action), attains deep and lasting sense of internal Peace and satisfaction.

On the other hand, those who constantly strive for personal benefit (even at the cost of others) are bound to experience the Kārmic consequences: stress, worry, dissatisfaction with whatever wealth they may have accumulated, anxiety and depression, yet never achieving the illusive happiness.

These two verses (3.6 and 3.7) very concisely convey the essence of Karma Yoga, and the secret of happiness.

Table 4
Some examples of duties and obligations
(Purushārtha) at every stage of life

Age group	Stage of Life	Examples of Responsibilities	Examples of Freedoms	Purushārth
Birth through age 25	Child Student	To parents, grand-parents, siblings, friends, neighbors teachers, gurus	To select schools and fields of study	Learn Dharma* and a field of Karma (vocation) for life based on aptitude
Age 25 to 50 years	Householder Parent Wage earner Employer Employee Professional Businessman	To Husband / wife To raise children To work for the good of society through your work, vocation or profession 	To choose a spouse, and a profession based on your natural aptitude(s)	Arth: earn a living according to Dharma* Kāma: enjoy family life according to Dharma*
Age 50 to 75 years	Retired Vānprastha Guru, Mentor Social leader	Selfless service to society through your talents and life experiences	Where you serve, how you serve, whom you serve	Seek Moksha (liberation through Karma Yoga (selfless service))
After 75 years of age	Sanyāsi Swāmi Yogī Mahātmā	Devote your life to service of God in company of spiritual minded souls (satsang)	Choose any yoga(s): Dhyāna, Gyāna, Karma, Bhakti	Seek Moksha (liberation through Dhyān, Gyān and Bhakti)

* Dharma: Your duties and obligations at each stage of life, with discrimination between right and wrong. Learning Dharma leads to the right knowledge of one's responsibilities. Having right knowledge of responsibilities results in right actions. By utilizing Arth and Kāma following the principles of Dharma, one paves the way for Moksha (liberation).

** In this stage of life where earning a living is required to support family obligations, one accepts fair compensation as an employee, professional or worker, but its important to keep in mind that the work must be done in the spirit of service. For example, a medical doctor must always act with compassion (not greed) to treat all patients equally as his moral duty and accept compensation according to the patient's ability (or whatever the insurance pays).

See Appendix 3 C: professional responsibilities according to Varna āshram Dharma.

Actions of an Enlightened Karma Yogī

Perform Actions most skillfully

- 3.8 बुद्धि-युक्तो जहातीह उभे सुकृत-दुष्कृते
 तस्माद् योगाय युज्यस्व योगः कर्मसु कौशलम् (BG 2.50)
 Buddhi- yukto jahāteeha ubhe sukrita-duskrite tasmād Yogāya yujyasva yogaḥ karmasu kaushalam.

Intelligent individuals with powers of discrimination between right and wrong, discharge their responsibilities without any selfish motive as Nishkāma Karma Yoga.

Thus, they do not suffer karmic consequences of their good or bad deeds. Therefore, devote yourself to Nishkāma Karma.

Performing work most skillfully to the best of one's abilities, and in the spirit of Nishkāma (selfless service to humanity) is Karma Yoga.

A few practical examples would illustrate the Karm Yoga:

1. A medical doctor who treats each patient most skillfully, with compassion, having the best interest of the patients in her heart, is a Karm yogi. She reports truthfully to the billing clerk what services she provided. She accepts whatever the insurance provides for her services.
2. Contrast: A medical doctor who treats each patient most skillfully but has his own selfish interest (how much money he can make from this patient) and not the best interest of the patients in his heart. He exaggerates the services he provided to extract more money from insurance by fraudulent means. His primary drive is to earn the most money, not serving the humanity. He is NOT a Karm yogi.
3. Other professionals (engineers, teachers, professors, IT consultants) who would like to follow Karm yoga must keep in mind that their primary objective in life is to serve others: provide the best service possible to their clients most skillfully (and accept whatever compensation they get for their services). Those who go to work to serve the humanity are Karm Yogi. On the other hand, those who work only to earn the most money (by hook or crook) without regards to the interest of their clients, are NOT.

There are other attributes of Karm Yoga in the following verses. They would naturally come to a karm Yogi who has decided to serve the humanity with their skill, training and profession.

Maintain Equipoise in Success and Failure

- 3.9 योगस्थः कुरु कर्माणि संगं त्यक्त्वा धनञ्जय
सिद्धि-असिद्धयोः समो भूत्वा समत्वं योग उच्यते (BG 2.48)
Yoga-sthaḥ kuru karmāṇi sangam tyaktvā dhananjaya siddhi-asiddhyoh samo bhūtvā samatvam yoga uchyate.

O Prince, perform action while fully established in the spirit of Nishkāma Karma-Yoga, abandoning the sense of attachment (with the fruits of your actions), and maintaining equipoise (sense of sameness) in success and failure. Evenness of mind is yoga.

- 3.10 सुख-दुःखे समे कृत्वा लाभालाभौ जयाजयौ
ततो युद्धाय युज्यस्व नैवं पापम् अवाप्स्यसि (BG 2.38)

Sukha dukkhe same kritvā lābhālābhau jayājayau tato yuddhāya yujyasva naivam pāpam avāpsyasi.

Maintaining equipoise in pleasure and pain, gain and loss, victory and defeat, you shall not incur sin as you engage in any struggle in life while carrying out the responsibilities of Dharma (as illustrated in Table 4) and for Loka-sangraha (welfare of society) as explained in verse 3.4

Surrender your Work to Brahman.
Then, your Work is Worship!

3.11 ब्रह्मणि आधाय कर्माणि संगम् त्यक्त्वा करोति यः
लिप्यते न स पापेन पद्म पत्रम् इवाम्भसा (BG 5.10)
Brahmany ādhāya karmāṇi sangam tyaktvā karoti yaḥ lipyate na sa pāpena padma-patram ivāmbhasā.

One who surrenders all his actions to BRAHMAN (Supreme Soul), abandoning attachment to the fruits (selfish interest) of his deeds, is not tainted by sin, just as the lotus leaf remains untouched by the water drops floating on its surface.

The lotus leaf remains untouched by the water around it and water drops upon it.

3.12 तस्मात् सर्वेषु कालेषु माम् अनुस्मर युध्य च
मयि-अर्पित-मनोबुद्धिः मामेव एष्यसि असंशयः (BG 8.7)

Tasmāt sarveshu kaleshu mām anusmara yudhya ca mayi arpita-mano-buddhiḥ māmēva eshyasi asanshayaḥ.

Therefore, remember Me, at all times, as you fight the evils (of the external or internal world).
Thus, your work becomes Worship!
Concentrate your mind and intellect on Me;
you shall come to Me, have no doubt!

For Further Study:

- Essential Karma (Meritorious Deeds) – Yagna, Dāna, Tapa (Appendix 3)
- Choosing Vocation According to one's Natural Aptitude (Appendix 4)

Karma Yoga – Summary

To practice Karma Yoga, it is important to fully understand, reflect upon, assimilate, and imbibe the lessons from all the verses in this chapter:

- ❖ Discharge your obligations, your natural responsibilities based on your station in life (as a son or daughter, a parent, a student or teacher, an employer or manager or employee, an engineer, doctor, scientist, leader or volunteer, etc.) in the spirit of service to family, society, or humanity.
- ❖ Perform your responsibilities in the best possible manner that you are capable of, through your aptitude, skill, and training, with perfection and mastery.
- ❖ Take up a profession or vocation that is suited to your inborn talent, tendencies, and aptitudes and grow them to their fullest potential.
- ❖ Do not discriminate against anyone based on their vocation. Treat everyone with respect without regard to gender, caste, vocation, etc.
- ❖ Do selfless service (not attached to personal benefit or self-gain). But that does not preclude (passively) receiving fair compensation for your services that you accept to support your family.
- ❖ Work in the interest of Loka-sangraham, for the good of the community.
- ❖ Work with a sense of equipoise, equanimity, i.e., sense of sameness in success or failure, pleasure or pain.
- ❖ Offer your work as a sacrifice to the Supreme Lord. Always keep in touch with the presence of the Divine in your heart and offer your work as worship to the Lord.

Geetā's overarching message is that you must perform your duty – not with selfish motives, and not to indulge in sensory gratification – but with the right thought and attitude of Loka-sangraham (for welfare of the society).

Additionally, surrendering to Brahman: you must perform your duty as selfless service while maintaining constant awareness of the divine presence; i.e., be aware of God's presence with reverence and joy.

There is joy in doing God's work, selfless service, as one's duty each day and at each station in life. That joy supersedes all other kind of worldly joy from selfish gain. In our day-to-day business of life we often lose awareness of God's presence. That's why Hindu traditions have developed many rituals, prayers to many deities (with different names and forms), mantras, kirtans, meditation practices, and other spiritual disciplines. They are all valid means of spiritual growth as they help individuals develop and maintain divine consciousness in their life according to their own Guṇas (Sattva, Rajas, Tamas) and aptitudes.

Lesson 4

Gyāna Yoga: The Path of Spiritual Knowledge & Wisdom

What is Gyāna Yoga?

Gyāna Yoga, also known as Sāmkhya Yoga, is the path of spiritual knowledge and wisdom. Essentially, Gyāna Yoga is about the knowledge of of ātmā (self) and Paramātmā (God) which also explains the theory of reincarnation and gives us an opportunity to reflect upon why we take birth and what is the purpose of life.

4.1 न हि ज्ञानेन सदृशं पवित्रम् इह विद्यते ।

तत् स्वयं योग-संसिद्धः कालेन आत्मनि विन्दति (BG 4.38)

Na hi gyānena sadrisham pavitram iha vidyate tat svayam yoga-samsiddhaḥ kālena ātmani vindati.

There is nothing in this world as sacred and as purifying as (spiritual) knowledge and wisdom.

Perfected by yoga, one finds by himself/herself this spiritual wisdom in his/her own Self (ātmā) in the due course of time.

Spiritual wisdom is not obtained through the five senses of cognition or intellectual pursuits.

One finds it oneself, in one's own heart.

Ethical Values for Wisdom Seekers

Treating Everyone Equally with Respect and Kindness

4.2 विद्या-विनय-सम्पन्ने ब्राह्मणे गवि हस्तिनि

शुनि चैव श्व-पाके च पण्डिताः समदर्शिनः (BG 5.18)

Vidyā-vinaya-sampanne brāhmaṇe gavi hastini shuni chaiva shva-pāke cha paṇḍitāḥ sama-darshinaḥ.

One with spiritual wisdom (called Pundit) respects every one, treating every one equally, whether one is a Brāhmin endowed with great learning and humility, or a dog eater (i.e., any one eating animal flesh).

Such a wise one would be kind even to animals whether a cow, an elephant, or a dog (Sri Krishna affirmed that animals also have souls).

4.3 अहिंसा सत्यम् अक्रोधः त्यागः शान्तिः अपैशुनम्
 दया भूतेषु अलोलुप्त्वं मार्दवं हीः अचापलम् (BG 16.2)
 Ahimsā satyam akrodhaḥ tyāgaḥ shāntiḥ apaishunam dayā bhūteshu aloluptvam mārḍavam hreeh achāpalam.

One with spiritual wisdom is non-violent in deeds, speech, and thought, truthful in speech and thought, of peaceful temperament without undue anger, frustration or aggravation, not harassing, intimidating, criticizing, or back-biting others, not indulging in sensory gratification.

One with compassion towards all, willing to sacrifice self-interest for the sake of others, with modesty (shame for doing anything immodest) and absence of fickleness.

Mahātmā Gāndhi was greatly influenced and inspired by these moral and ethical values. All his actions reflected these values.

4.4 अमानित्वम् अदम्भित्वम् अहिंसा क्षान्तिः आर्जवम्
 आचार्य उपासनं शौचं स्थैर्यम् आत्म-विनिग्रहः (BG 13.8)
 Amānitvam adambhitvam ahimsā kshāntiḥ ārjavam āchārya upāsanam shaucham sthairyam ātma-vinigrahaḥ.

These are the values of a Gyāni: Humility, unpretentiousness, non-violence, forgiveness, uprightness. Additionally, respectfully serving the teacher, inner and outer purity, steadfastness, and self-discipline . . .

For a comprehensive discourse on the values in these verses (and also four more verses on this subject: BG 13.9, 13.10, 13.11), please read: “The Value of Values” - by Swāmi Dayānanda Saraswati, ārsha Vidyā Gurukulam, Saylorsburg, PA and Chennai, India.

Lesson 4-A

Ätma Gyāna: Knowledge of the Self

Fundamental Questions & Answers:

Q. Who am I? Am I this body?

If not, then who or what am I?

A. I am not this body; I am the soul.

Soul is the inner essence of our existence.

— We are not our bodies; we are souls – clothed in body suits.

— The body is the temple wherein God lives as our soul.

Q. What is death?

A. When soul leaves an old, diseased or damaged body, the body is dead (lifeless).

Q. What happens after death?

A. Either Rebirth or Moksha (union with God). It depends on your deeds in this life, your spiritual development (yoga sādhanā) and your bhakti/devotion.

Read in this chapter what Sri Krishna says about Birth, Death and Reincarnation

4.5 देहिनो अस्मिन् यथा देहे कौमारं यौवनं जरा
तथा देहान्तर प्राप्तिः धीरस् तत्र न मुह्यति (BG 2.13)

Dehino asmin yathā dehe kaumāram yauvanam jarā tathā dehāntara-prāptiḥ dheeras tatra na muhyati.

Srī Krishna spoke to Prince Arjuna:

As our bodies experience childhood, youth, and old age;
Similarly, after death of this body, the soul passes on to another body. Wise ones firmly believe in this, they have no illusions about it.

Our bodies are temporary shelter for the Soul that is everlasting. We are not our bodies; we are our souls.

- 4.6 न तु एवाहं जातु नासं न त्वं नेमे जनाधिपाः
 न चैव न भविष्यामः सर्वे वयम् अतः परम् (BG 2.12)
 Na tu evāham jātu nāsam na tvam neme janādhipāḥ na chaiva na bhavishyāmaḥ sarve vayam ataḥ param.

O Prince, There was never a time in the past, when I did not exist, or when you (your soul) did not exist, or when (the souls of) any of these kings assembled here did not exist.

Nor will there be any time in the future, when all of us, our souls, shall cease to exist.

We (as souls) have all existed before and shall continue to exist in the future! All souls are truly immortal.

- 4.7 न जायते म्रियते वा कदाचिन्
 नायं भूत्वा भविता वा न भूयः
 अजो नित्यः शाश्वतः अयं पुराणो
 न हन्यते हन्यमाने शरीरे (BG 2.20)
 Na jāyate mriyate vā kadāchin nāyam bhūtvā bhavitā vā na bhūyaḥ ajo nityāḥ shāshvato 'yam purāṇo na hanyate hanyamāne shareere.

Neither the soul takes birth, nor it ever dies.
 Having come into existence once, it does not come into existence again and again;
 The soul is unborn, eternal, changeless and ancient;
 it does not perish when the body perishes.

Trans-migration of Soul

- 4.8 वासांसि जीर्णानि यथा विहाय
 नवानि गृह्णाति नरोपराणि
 तथा शरीराणि विहाय जीर्णानि
 अन्यानि संयाति नवानि देही (BG 2.22)

Vāsānsi jeerṇāni yathā vihāya navāni grhṇāti naroparāṇi tathā shareerāṇi vihāya jeerṇāni anyāni sanyāti navāni dehee.

As a man casts off his worn-out clothes, and puts on new ones; Similarly, the embodied-Soul casts off it's worn out (old or damaged) body at death and acquires a new body in the next life.

- 4.9 नैनं छिन्दन्ति शस्त्राणि नैनं दहति पावकः
 न चैनं क्लेदयन्ति आपो न शोषयति मारुतः (BG 2.23)

Nainam chindanti shastrāṇi nainam dahati pāvakaḥ na chainam kledayanti āpo na shoshayati mārutaḥ.

Weapons can not cut It (the soul), fire can not burn It, water can not dissolve It, and wind can not dry It.
 It is indestructible! It is Immortal!

How is soul related to body/mind and to Ishwara?

- 4.10 ममैव अंशो जीवलोके जीवभूतः सनातनः
 मनःषष्ठानि इन्द्रियाणि प्रकृति-स्थानि कर्षति (BG 15.7) mama aiva aṁsho jāvaloke jāvabhūtaḥ sanātanaḥ manah-shashṭhāni indriyāṇi prakṛti-sthāni karshati

Sri Krishna:

In this body, the eternal soul is a minuscule fraction of myself. And it (the soul) binds with the mind and the five senses situated in the material nature.

Relationship between Ātmā and Paramātmā is very deep

- 4.14 उपद्रष्टा अनुमन्ता च भर्ता भोक्ता महेश्वरः
 परमात्मा इति च अपि उक्तो देहेस्मिन् पुरुषः परः (BG 13.23)
 Upadrasṭā anumantā cha bhartā bhoktā maheshvaraḥ
 Paramātmā iti cha api ukto dehe'smin purushaḥ paraḥ.

Paramātmā, the Supreme Divinity, is dwelling in this body as ātmā.
 It is the witness, overseer of our actions.
 It acts as our conscience.
 It supports life and enjoys and suffers from its experiences.

The soul is the indwelling Lord, the Supreme Self.
 Ātmā resides at the microscopic level;
 Paramātmā at the macroscopic level.

What happens (at death) when the soul leaves the body?

4.11 शरीरं यत् अवाप्नोति यत् चापि उत्क्रामति ईश्वरः
गृहीत्वा एतानि संयाति वायुःगन्धान् इव आशयात् (BG 15.8)
Sharīraṃ yat avāpnoti yat chāpi utkrāmati Ishvaraḥ gṛhitva etāni saṃyāti vāyur gandhān iva āshayāt

As the air carries fragrance from place to place, so does the soul carries the mind and senses with it, when it leaves an old body and enters a new one.

What happens to one who sincerely performs yoga Sādhanā, but does not achieve perfection (Moksha) in this life?

4.12 पार्थ नैवेह नामुत्र विनाशः तस्य विद्यते
न हि कल्याणकृत् कश्चिद् दुर्गतिं तात गच्छति (BG 6.40)
O Prince, one engaged in yoga sādhanā will not suffer either in this life, or in the next. One who always strives to do good in this life will never face misfortune.

1.3 प्राप्य पुण्यकृतां लोकान् उषित्वा शाश्वतीः समाः
शुचीनां श्रीमतां गेहे योगभ्रष्टः अभिजायते (BG 6.41)
Prāpya puṇya-kritām lokān ushitvā shāsvateeh samāḥ shucheenām shreematām gehe yoga-bhrasṭah abhijāyate.

Even if one failed to achieve perfection in this life, he would earn merits (punya) that would enable him to go to heaven and experience the divine bliss for a long time.

After his merits are exhausted, he would be born in to a pure (sāttvic) family and continue his spiritual journey onward.

Also, read verse 3.12, 4.33, 5.2 to 5.7 and Appendix 1 verse
A1.1 to A1.4.

Other Hindu scriptures provide more details about the transmigration of soul at the end of life. As explained in the Background Chapter verse B.2 and B.3, there are three aspects to our bodies:

1. Sthoola Sharīra or Gross Body: the physical body made up of five macro-elements (solids, liquids, heat/energy, gases and space)
2. Sookshma Sharīra or Subtle body: consists of eighteen elements: five senses of cognition, five objects of sense cognition, and the five senses of action, along with the mind, intellect, and the ego.
3. Kāran Sharīra or Causal body: consists of the accumulated karma phala (fruits of your deeds) from past lives, including the sanskāras (tendencies) brought forward from previous lives.

At the time of death, the (old or damaged) gross body is left here and over time it merges with the five macro-elements (maha-bhootas), but as the soul leaves the dead body, it takes with it the subtle and causal aspects of the body to the new body, i.e., to the new incarnation.

The Body is the Kshetra, the Soul infuses it with the light of Consciousness

4.12 यथा प्रकाशयति एकः कृत्स्नं लोकम् इमं रविः
क्षेत्रम् क्षेत्री तथा कृत्स्नम् प्रकाशयति भारत (BG 13.34)
Yathā prakāshayati ekaḥ kṛtsnam lokam imam raviḥ kshetram kshetrī tathā kṛtsnam prakāshayati bhārata.

Just as the Sun illuminates the entire solar system, so also the Lord-of-the-Field (Ātmā) illuminates the whole "Field " that is our physical body, O Prince!

Here the word illuminates means that ātmā infuses the (inert) body with consciousness<sup>15</sup> and intelligence in every cell of the body so it can perform its organ specific functions.

4.13 ज्ञानेन तु तद् अज्ञानं येषां नाशितम् आत्मनः
तेषाम् आदित्यवत् ज्ञानम् प्रकाशयति तत् परम् (BG 5.16)
Gyānena tu tad agyānam yeshām nāshitam ātmanah teshām āditya-vat gyānam prakāshayati tat param.

Those whose ignorance has been removed by the Knowledge of the Self, to them that Knowledge of the Self reveals the Supreme (BRAHMAN) as the bright sun ... repelling darkness, revealing everything clearly.

<sup>15</sup> "Proof of Heaven - A Neurosurgeon's Journey into the Afterlife" by Eben Alexander, MD, Harvard Medical School, Boston; Simon & Schuster publisher. "Consciousness is the most profound mystery in the universe." "in fact, consciousness is at the root of all existence".

Lesson 4-B
Paramātmā Gyāna (Brahm Vidyā)
Knowledge of the Supreme Self (Brahman)

4.15 समं सर्वेषु भूतेषु तिष्ठन्तं परमेश्वरम्
 विनश्यत्सु अविनश्यन्तं यः पश्यति स पश्यति (BG 13.28)
 Samam sarveshu bhūteshu tishthantam parameshvaram vinash.yatsu avinash.yantam yah pashyati sa pashyati.

Param ātmā , the Supreme Lord, is established equally in all beings (as ātmā).

One who sees the imperishable (ātmā) within the perishable (body) of all living beings, he truly comprehends the Supreme Reality.

4.16 ईश्वरः सर्वभूतानां हृद्देशे अर्जुन तिष्ठति
 भ्रामयन् सर्वभूतानि यन्त्र-आरूढानि मायया (BG 18.61)
 Ishvaraḥ sarva-bhūtānām hrid.deshe Arjuna tishthati bhramayan sarva-bhūtāni yantra-ārūḍhāni māyayā.

The Lord dwells in the hearts of all beings, O Prince, causing all beings, by His Māyā (illusive power), to move and act, as if mounted on an instrument, or device.

Just think how each one of us goes through the human life cycle: birth, growth, maturity, old age and death (referred to in verse 4.11 as Kaumāram, Yauvanam, Jarā (BG 2.13), experiencing the feelings and emotions associated with each stage of life, as if going through a Disney World ride in slow motion!

In this verse as in all ancient scriptural writings, as well as in poetry, heart does not refer to the physical organ, but to the faculty of human beings that is the repository of all positive qualities of love, compassion, charity, generosity, and the like.

The words: The Lord 'dwells in the heart' means, though He is present everywhere, the Lord is most conspicuously self-evident in the Heart as defined above. This is realized specially during meditation. See more about Meditation in Lesson 2.

When & Why God Comes to Earth - as an Avatāra?

- 4.17 यदा यदा हि धर्मस्य ग्लानिः भवति भारत
अभ्युत्थानम् अधर्मस्य तदा आत्मानं सृजामि अहम् (BG 4.7)
Yadā yadā hi dharmasya – glāniḥ bhavati bhārata abhyut.thānam adharmasya – tadā ātmānam srijāmi aham.

Srī Krishna said: Whenever there is a decline of Dharma<sup>16</sup> (righteousness) and rise of Adharma (unrighteousness) in the world, O Prince, then I manifest Myself as an Avatāra.

- 4.18 परित्राणाय साधूनां विनाशाय च दुष्कृताम्
धर्मं संस्थापन अर्थाय सम्भवामि युगे युगे (BG 4.8)
Paritrāṇāya sādūnām vināshāya cha dushkritām dharma-sansthāpan arthāya sambhavāmi yuge yuge.

For the protection of all good people and destruction of the wicked, and to re-establish Dharma (righteousness) in the world,
I appear in a human form (as an Avatār) in each epoch.

<sup>16</sup> Buddhist view of Dharma: “Because we all share this planet Earth, we have to learn to live in harmony and peace with each other and with nature. This is not just a dream, but a necessity.” H.H. Dalai Lama * Western notion of Dharma from Plato’s Republic: “the ideal community is “a city which would be established in accordance with nature.”

* American notion of Dharma in the Declaration of Independence:

“When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people, ... to assume among the powers of the Earth, the separate and equal station to which the Lāws of Nāture and of Nature's God entitle them... We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.”

The following verses explain the aspects of Paramātmā as omnipresent, omniscient, omnipotent.

4.19 सर्वस्य चाहं हृदि सन्निविष्टो
 मत्तः स्मृति-ज्ञानम् अपोहनं च
 वेदैश्च सर्वैर् अहमेव वेद्यो
 वेदान्त-कृत् वेदविद् एव चाहम् (BG 15.15)

Sarvasya chāham hridi sannivishṭo mattaḥ smritir-gyānam apohanam cha vedaish.cha sarvair aham.eva vedyo vedānta-krit veda-vid eva chāham.

I am seated in the hearts of all beings. I am omnipotent!
 I am the source of their memory, as well their ability to forget (old painful memories) intelligence and knowledge.

Vedas and Vedānta are full of knowledge about me.
 I am the author of Vedānta. I am omniscient!

4.20 यो मां पश्यति सर्वत्र सर्वं च मयि पश्यति
 तस्याहं न प्रणश्यामि स च मे न प्रणश्यति (BG 6.30)
 Yo mām pashyati sarvatra sarvam cha mayi pashyati tasyāham na praṇashyāmi sa cha me na praṇashyati.

He who sees Me everywhere (omnipresent), and sees everything in Me,
 I am not lost to him (not away from his thoughts)- nor is he ever lost to Me.

This verse reveals the profound unity of all things:
 When we are one with the Divine, we become one with the whole universe.

Prince Arjuna Requests for a Rare Glimpse of Srī Krishna's Divine Splendor

4.21 एवम् एतद् यथा आत्थ त्वम् आत्मानम् परमेश्वर
द्रष्टुम् इच्छामि ते रूपम् ऐश्वरं पुरुषोत्तम (BG 11.3)
Evam etad yathā ātha tvam ātmānam parameshvara drashtum ichchāmi te rūpam aishvaram purushottama.

Prince Arjuna:

O Supreme Lord! I can barely imagine your greatness as you have described Yourself. Therefore, I wish to see you in your transcendental (Divine) Form, O Purushottam (greatest among men).

To enable Arjuna to see his transcendental form, unviewable to human eyes, Sri Krishna gave Arjuna Divya Drishti (divine vision) and said:

4.22 इहैकस्थं जगत् कृत्स्नं पश्याद्य सचराचरम्
मम देहे गुडाकेश यत् चान्यत् द्रष्टुम् इच्छसि (BG 11.7)
Ihaika-stham jagat kritsnam pashyādya sacharā.charam mama dehe guḍākesha yat chānyat drashtum ichchasi.

Sri Krishna:

Now behold, O Prince, the whole universe established in my infinite Body, the entire universe, including everything that is the movable and everything that is immovable - and anything else that you may desire to see in the universe.

For those readers who relate to the physical better than the abstract, here are some verses that illustrate the concept of Paramātmā through metaphors from the physical universe.

Sanjaya also had the divine vision. He saw the universal form of Lord Krishna and narrated his visual experience to the blind King Dhrita-rāshṭra in this way:

4.23 दिवि सूर्य सहस्रस्य भवेत् युगपत् उत्थिता

यदि भाः सदृशी सा स्यात् भासः तस्य महात्मनः (BG 11.12)

Divi sūrya-sahasrasya bhavet yugapat utthitā yadi bhāḥ sadrishee sā syāt bhāsaḥ tasya mahātmanaḥ.

If the light of a thousand suns were to blaze forth all at once in the sky<sup>17</sup>, that brilliance might scarcely resemble the splendor of that exalted Supreme Being!

17

Pre-eminent nuclear scientist, Robert Oppenheimer, director of the Manhattan Project that developed the first nuclear device, was a student of Sanskrit at UC Berkeley and became a Geeta admirer. It is said that he uttered this verse of the 'Thousand Suns' when he witnessed the first nuclear explosion!

Lord Sri Krishna had also described himself like this in another context:

4.24 मत्तः परतरं नान्यत् किञ्चिद् अस्ति धनञ्जय
मयि सर्वम् इदं प्रोतं सूत्रे मणिगणा इव (BG 7.7)
Mataḥ parataram nānyat kinchid asti dhanam.jaya mayi sarvam idam protam sūtre maṇi-gaṇā iva.

There is absolutely nothing beyond My transcendental existence, O Prince.

This whole universe is structured around Me, as a profusion of gems arranged by a skilled jeweler with an unseen string going through them, holding them together in their respective places (orbits).

This verse clearly explains that the universe is structured in an orderly manner according to a skillful plan by the infinite wisdom and intelligence of the Supreme Controller of the Universe, the Lord, Brahman.

4.25 यत् आदित्य-गतं तेजो जगद् भासयते अखिलम्
यत् चन्द्रमसि यत् चाग्नौ तत् तेजो विद्धि मामकम् (BG 15.12)
Yat āditya-gatam tejo jagad bhāsayate akhīlam yat chandramasi yat chāgnau tat tejo viddhi māmakam.

I am the source of that light that illuminates the Sun which, in turn, illuminates the entire solar system.

I am the source of the light that is in the moon and in the fire -

know that - that Light originates from Me;
I am the original source! I am omnipotent!

How are all Souls established in Paramātmā?

4.26 यथा आकाश-स्थितो नित्यं वायुः सर्वत्र-गो महान् ।
तथा सर्वाणि भूतानि मत्-स्थानि इति उपधारय (BG 9.6)

Yathā ākāsha-sthīto nityam vāyuḥ sarvatra-go mahān tathā sarvāṇi bhūtāni mat-sthāni iti upa.dhāraya.

As the mighty wind, though always moving everywhere, is permanently established in the space (ākāsha).
In the same way, you must understand, O Prince that all beings (souls) are permanently established in Me!

4.27 अविभक्तं च भूतेषु विभक्तम् इव च स्थितम्
भूतभर्तृ च तत् ज्ञेयं प्रसिष्यु प्रभविष्यु च (BG 13.16)

Avibhaktam cha bhūteshu vibhaktam iva cha sthitam bhūta-bhartri cha tat geyam prasishṇu prabhavishṇu cha.

Although Paramātmā is Undivided, Infinite, Whole, Paramātmā appears to exist as if divided in beings (as separate ātmās) in the same way as space appears divided in rooms separated by walls!

Also, the same Paramātmā appears in multiple forms as:

- Vishnu, the perpetual sustainer of the universe;
- Shiva, continuously transforming the universe<sup>18</sup>
- Brahmā, continuously generating all that exists.

The oldest Hindu scriptures, called Vedas, proclaimed:

एकम् सत् विप्र बहुधा वदन्ति Ekam Sat Vipra Bahudhā Vadanti Truth is One. Sages speak of it by various names! Rig Veda (1.164.46)

Srī Krishna reiterated the same revelation in the above verse.

---

<sup>18</sup>“Every Act of creation is first of all an act of destruction” - Pablo Picasso, one of the world’s foremost, pre-eminent, creative artists.

4.28 यदा भूत-पृथक् भावम् एक-स्थम् अनुपश्यति
 ततः एव च विस्तारं ब्रह्म सम्पद्यते तदा (BG 13.30)
 Yadā bhūta-prithak-bhāvam eka-stham anupashyati tataḥ eva cha vistāram brahma sampadyate tadā.

The instant one fully comprehends the fact that the diversity of all existence is rooted in One Supreme Spirit* and that this Universe is the expansion of that One**. .
 In that instant one realizes the Supreme!

Comprehending the Unity underlying the diversity in the Universe - is Self-Realization.

* Similar concept behind the “E-Pluribus Unum” (stated in the reverse order “One from many”) the de-facto motto of the United States that adorns the great seal of the United States of America!

** According to the Big Bang Theory, scientists now believe that this Universe is an expansion of an incredibly high energy density field that is homogeneous and isotropic (uniform in all directions).

Arjuna after seeing the Divine Splendor

4.29 त्वम् आदि-देवः पुरुषः पुराणः
 त्वम् अस्य विश्वस्य परं निधानम्
 वेत्ता असि वेद्यं च परं च धाम
 त्वया ततं विश्वम् अनन्त-रूप (BG 11.38)

Tvam ādi-devaḥ puruṣaḥ purāṇaḥ tvam asya vishvasya param nidhānam vettā asi vedyam cha param cha dhāma tvayā tatam vishvam ananta-rūpa.

Bhagvān, You are the Original Divine existence.
 You are the most ancient being.
 You are the transcendent upholder of the universe.
 You are Omniscient.

Humanity needs to understand that the universe is pervaded by you in Infinite Forms.
 You, the One Original Divinity, take Infinite forms!

Concluding Verses:

The following four verses summarize the essential knowledge about Paramātmā.

4.30 गतिः भर्ता प्रभुः साक्षी निवासः शरणं सुहृत् प्रभवः प्रलयः स्थानं निधानं बीजम् अव्ययम् (BG 9.18)

Gatiḥ bhartā prabhuḥ sākshee - nivāsaḥ sharaṇam suhrit prabhavaḥ pralayaḥ sthānam nidhānam beejam avyayam.

Srī Krishna told Arjuna:

O Prince, I am the goal of human life (i.e., Moksha – liberation from the cycle of life and death, and ultimately, union with Paramātmā);
I am the lord who sustains the universe;
I am the inner witness and the only true friend;
I am the shelter that provides refuge to all who come;
I am the beginning, the end, and the space in between;
I am the resting place (womb) and the medium of creation;
I am the eternal, indestructible seed (source) of the universe.

4.31 ब्रह्मणो हि प्रतिष्ठा अहम् अमृतस्य अव्ययस्य च शाश्वतस्य च धर्मस्य सुखस्य एकान्तिकस्य च (BG 14.27)

Brahmaṇo hi pratisthā aham amrtasya avyayasya cha shāsvatasya cha dharmasya sukhasya ekānti.kasya cha.

Srī Krishna:

I am the BRAHMAN, the Infinite Consciousness, the macrocosm, that which is never ending, upholder of the everlasting, universal DHARMA (laws governing the universe) Immortal, Imperishable, the One who is the source of Absolute Bliss.

One who has obtained wisdom, knows Brahman is everything!

4.32 बहूनां जन्मनाम् अन्ते ज्ञानवान् मां प्रपद्यते
वासुदेवः सर्वम् इति स महात्मा सु-दुर्लभः (BG 7.19)
Bahūnām janmanām ante gyānavān mām prapadyate vāsudevah sarvam iti sa mahātmā su-durlabhaḥ.

Srī Krishna:

Hard to find is that great soul (Mahātmā) who has realized that ALL THIS - every thing that exists - is VāSUDEVA.

Matured after many births and many lives, such rare souls, perfected in this wisdom, achieve Moksha; i.e., liberation from the cycle of life and death, and merge in My Spirit.

4.33 ब्रह्मार्पणं ब्रह्म हविः ब्रह्माग्नौ ब्रह्मणा हुतम्
ब्रह्मैव तेन गन्तव्यं ब्रह्म-कर्म समाधिना (BG 4.24)
Brahmārpaṇam brahma havir brahmāgnāu brahmaṇā hutam brahmaiva tena gantavyam brahma-karma-samādhinā.

Srī Krishna:

In performing any havan or yagya, the oblation is offered to Brahman - by the Brahman; the oblation itself is Brahman; Brahman is also the clarified butter that is poured in the fire; and the fire itself is Brahman! Thus, the wise one who always sees Brahman every where in all forms and is totally immersed in the consciousness of Brahman in all his actions, verily attains Brahman (moksha).

The above verse (BG 4.24) is a traditional prayer before meals. In that context it is interpreted to mean that the food being offered is the five essential elements aspect of Brahman; the individuals eating the food are also Brahman (affirming Aham Brahmāsmi, I am Brahman) performing this act (lunch, dinner) while remembering, being grateful to, and fully conscious of the omni-present Brahman.

We surrender all our actions of cooking, serving, and eating to Brahman. May our Sādhanā lead us to Brahman, the highest goal of human life.

Om, Peace! Peace! Peace!

Gyāna Yoga Summary

Lessons of Gyāna Yoga are beautifully summarized in a Hindi/Sanskrit prayer which is presented below with English translation:

Q. Who am I ? And Who (or What) is God?

Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Amar ātmā Satchidānanda mai hoon, Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham	I am Shiva, I am Shiva, I am Shiva I am the immortal Soul that is Sat (pure) Chit (Consciousness) and ānand (bliss) I am Shiva, I am Shiva, I am Shiva
Akhil Vishva kā jo Paramātmā hai, Sabhī Prāṇiyo kā wahī ātmā hai, Wahī ātmā Satchidānanda mai hoon, Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham	Paramātmā who pervades the universe Is also the ātmā in all living beings. I am also that ātmā that is Sat, Chit, ānand I am Shiva ...
Jisé shastra kātē na agnī jalāyē, Galāyē na pāni na mrityu mitāyē, Wahī ātmā Satchidānanda mai hoon, Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham	Weapons can not cut it, fire can not burn it Water can not dissolve it, death can not destroy it I am that ātmā that is Sat, Chit, ānand I am Shiva ...
Amar ātmā hai maraṇsheel kāyā, Sabhī prāṇiyo ké jo bhītar samāyā, Wahī ātmā Satchidānanda mai hoon, Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham	ātmā is immortal; the body is perishable ātmā pervades every living cell I am that ātmā that is Sat Chit ānand I am Shiva ...
Hai tāro(n) sitaro(n) mai ābhās jiskā, Hai chandā aur Sūraj mai prakāsh jiskā, Wahī ātmā Satchidānanda mai hoon, Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham	Paramātmā shines through the stars He is the source of light in Sun and Moon I am that ātmā that is Sat Chit ānand I am Shiva
Jo vyāpak hai kan kan mai āvās jiskā, Nahī teen kalo mai ho nāsh jiskā, Wahī ātmā Satchidānanda mai hoon, Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham Shivoham	ātmā that is immersed in every atom That is indestructible, immortal forever I am that ātmā that is Sat Chit ānand I am Shiva ...

Sivoham, as well as Aham Brahmasmi, and Tatvam Asi are Mahā-vākya (Truth of the highest order)

---

Aham Brahmāsmi = I am Brahman.
Tatvam Asi = Thou art That (Brahman)

Lesson 5
Bhakti Yoga: The Path of Loving Devotion - Surrendering to God

- 5.1 अहं सर्वस्य प्रभवो मत्तः सर्वं प्रवर्तते
इति मत्वा भजन्ते मां बुधा भाव-समन्विताः (BG 10.8)
Aham sarvasya prabhavo mattah sarvam pravartate iti matvā bhajante mām budhā bhāva-samanvitāh.

I am the Source of everything;
everything evolves, and emanates from Me;
Understanding this, the wise ones worship Me with deep feelings of devotion and love.

Srī Krishna spoke to Prince Arjuna:

5.2 सर्व-धर्मान् परित्यज्य माम् एकं शरणं ब्रज

अहं त्वा सर्व-पापेभ्यो मोक्षयिष्यामि मा शुचः (BG 18.66)

Sarva-dharmān parityajya mām ekam sharaṇam vraja aham tvā sarva-pāpebhyo mokshayishyāmi mā shuchaḥ.

Abandoning attachment to the fruits of your actions, take refuge in Me.

I will liberate you from all sins. Do not grieve.

This is the same advice as in verse 3.9

Brahmaṇi ādhāya karmāni sangam tyaktvā karoti yaḥ
Lipyate na sa pāpen padma-patram ivāmbhasā (BG 5.10)

But here it is given from the Bhakti perspective.

Here in Bhakti bhāva, Srī Krishna speaks in the first person:

“Take refuge in me. I will liberate you from all sins.”

5.3 मन्मना भव मद्-भक्तः मद्-याजी मां नमस्कुरु

मामेव एष्यसि युक्तवैवम् आत्मानं मत्परायणः (BG 9.34)

Manmanā bhava mad-bhaktaḥ mad-yājī mām namaskuru māmeva eshyasi yuktvaivam ātmānam mat-parāyaṇaḥ.

Focus your mind on Me alone; be devoted to Me,
bow down to Me;

Uniting your Self with Me, as the Supreme Goal, you shall come to Me.

5.4 मत्-कर्म-कृन् मत् परमो मद-भक्तः संग वर्जितः
निर्वैरः सर्व-भूतेषु यः स माम् एति पाण्डव (BG 11.55)

Mat-karma-krin mat-paramo mad-bhaktaḥ sangā-varjitaḥ nirvairāḥ sarva-bhuteshu yaḥ sa mām eti Pāṇḍava.

One who performs all actions for Me, completely free from attachment to selfish interests, who is ever devoted to Me, knowing Me as the Supreme;

And who bears enmity towards none,
O Prince, such a one finally comes to Me.

5.5 भक्त्या माम् अभिजानाति यावान् यः चास्मि तत्त्वतः
ततो मां तत्त्वतो ज्ञात्वा विशते तद्-अनन्तरम् (BG 18.55)

Bhaktiyā mām abhijānāti yāvān yaḥ chāsmi tattvataḥ tato mām tattvato gyātvā vishate tad-anantaram.

Through Bhakti (devotion) one can know Me exactly as I am, and having known Me thus in my true essence, one unites with my Supreme existence.

5.6 अनन्याः चिन्तयन्तो मां ये जनाः पर्युपासते
तेषां नित्य-अभियुक्तानां योग-क्षेमं वहाम्यहम् (BG 9.22)

Ananyāḥ cintayanto mām ye janāḥ paryupāsate teshām nitya-abhiyuktānām yoga-kshemam vahāmyaham.

Those who meditate on Me and worship Me with full faith and unwavering devotion, their necessities of life and safety/security are easily obtained through divine intervention, Providence.

5.7 अन्त-काले च माम एव स्मरन् मुक्त्वा कलेवरम्
यः प्रयाति स मद्भावं याति नास्ति अत्र संशयः (BG 8.5)
Anta-kāle cha mām eva smaran muktvā kalevaram yaḥ prayāti sa mad-bhāvam yāti nāsti atra sanshayaḥ.

And at the end (time of death) one who leaves his body and departs from this world while remembering Me, attains My Supreme Spirit; there is no doubt about this.

5.8 यो यो यां यां तनुं भक्तः श्रद्धया अर्चितुम् इच्छति
तस्य तस्याचलां श्रद्धां ताम् एव विदधामि अहम् (BG 7.21)
Yo yo yām yām tanum bhaktaḥ shraddhayā architum ichchati tasya tasyāchalām shraddhām tām eva vidadhāmi aham.

Whichever Devā (m) or Devī (f) a devotee desires to worship with faith, I make his faith stronger in that particular form (Devā or Devī) that he is drawn to.

5.9 ये अपि अन्य-देवताः भक्ताः यजन्ते श्रद्धया अन्विताः

ते अपि मामेव कौन्तेय यजन्ति अविधि-पूर्वकम् (BG 9.23)

Ye api anya devatāḥ bhaktāḥ yajante sraddhayā anvitāḥ te api mām eva kaunteya yajanti avidhi-pūrvakam.

Even those who worship with great devotion and faith, other names and forms of God as Devīs and Devatās, they indeed worship Me alone.

O Prince, they may not fully understand or appreciate this fact and, therefore, follow non-traditional forms of devotional practices.

5.10 पत्रं पुष्पं फलं तोयं यो मे भक्त्या प्रयच्छति
तत् अहं भक्ति-उपहृतम् अश्नामि प्रयतात्मनः (BG 9.26)
Patram pushpam phalam toyam yo me bhaktyā prayachchati tad aham bhakti-upahritam ashnāmi prayatātmanah.

Whoever offers Me with devotion a leaf, a flower, a fruit, or water, I accept that offering of the pure-minded, filled with devotion.

5.11 यत् करोषि यत् अश्नासि यत् जुहोषि ददासि यत्
यत् तपस्यसि कौन्तेय तत् कुरुष्व मद् अर्पणम् (BG 9.27)
Yat karoshi yat ashnāsi yat juhoshi dadāsi yat yat tapasyasi kaunteya tat kurushva mad-arpanam.

Whatever work you do, whatever food you eat, whatever Yagna you perform, whatever charity (Dāna) you give,
whatever purifying austerities you practice,
O Prince, do it always as an offering to Me !

Remember this prayer before starting the day's work!
And not only at dinner time, but before all meals.

Concluding Remārks

C.1 इति ते ज्ञानम् आख्यातं गुह्यात् गुह्यतरं मया
विमृश्या एतद् अशेषेण यथा इच्छसि तथा कुरु (BG 18.63)

Iti te gyānam ākhyātam guhyāt guhyataram mayā vimrashya etad ashesheṇa yathā ichchasi tathā kuru.

Srī Krishna: Thus, I have revealed to you all the wisdom that explains the greatest of secrets to mankind.

Now, reflect on it thoroughly;
then, act as you wish.

Metaphorically, this verse conveys the idea that the Supreme Lord has given every one full freedom to choose their actions, and thus their own destiny in this life (and future lives). Geetā does not dictate, does not prescribe, does not spoon feed, but gives you the tools and the wisdom to think for yourself and act with your own discretion.

C.2 यः इदं परमं गुह्यं मद्-भक्तेषु अभिधास्यति
भक्तिं मयि परां कृत्वा माम् एव एष्यति असंशयः (BG 18.68)

Yah idam paramam guhyam mad-bhakteshu abhidhāsyati bhaktim mayi parām kṛtva mām eva eshyati asanshayaḥ.

He who, acting with love and devotion to me, will teach or disseminate this deepest secret knowledge (that is unknowable by human cognitive senses and intellect) to those who seek the truth, shall doubtless come to Me in the end.

C.3 यत्र योगेश्वरः कृष्णो यत्र पार्थो धनुर्धरः
तत्र श्रीः विजयो भूतिः ध्रुवा नीतिः मतिमम (BG 18>78)
Yatra yogeshvaraḥ Kṛṣṇo, yatra Pārtho dhanurdharaḥ
Tatra shrī vijayo bhūtiḥ dhruvā neetiḥ matirmama.

This is the concluding verse of Geetā where Sri Sanjaya opined to King Dhritrāshṭra:

Wherever Srī Krishna, the Lord of Yoga (Unity principle of body, mind, intellect, and spirit, i.e., moral integrity) and Prince Arjuna, a man of right action and conviction (the archer) come together, there surely will come prosperity, victory, and ever lasting happiness because their actions will be guided by right principles; this is my firm conviction.

The symbolism of Lord Krishna (Yogeshvar) and Arjuna (the archer) represents the philosophy of Geetā that whenever a person, guided by a pure spiritual understanding undertakes principled action in selfless service, according to his/her Dharma, success and happiness are assured with the divine blessing.

Synopsis of Geeta's Wisdom:

The goal of human life is to achieve Liberation (Moksha). Bhagvad Geeta teaches a moral way of life, as follows, to achieve liberation:

- A. Self Discipline – Follow the Moral conduct explained in Appendix 2.
- B. Sri Krishna taught the four Yoga paths to Arjuna to achieve Liberation:
  - 1. Karm Yoga: to dedicate your life to work that is not purely selfish, but for the good of humanity; and to conduct our lives fully cognizant that our selfish deeds will have consequences.
  - 2. Dhyan Yoga: to move your mind away from its constant contact with the physical world and unite it with the Spiritual realm. This brings us peace, and removes physical and mental ailments like hypertension, anxiety and depression.
  - 3. Bhakti Yoga: to develop a deep love and devotion to any Form of Divinity, or to the Formless Spirit. This also brings peace.
  - 4. Gyan Yoga: to deeply comprehend the relationship between Atma, Paramatma, and the humanity of the world around us.
- C. Each path has a deeply running thought stream of Universal love and universal connectedness. We are all connected in the web of Samsāra. (Covid-19 forcefully brought to the forefront how connected we all are!)
- D. We are all humans. Each of us is a reflection of that Supreme Spirit or Consciousness called paramātmā that pervades us all as Jivātma.

This makes us all equal, as members of one family.

It gave rise to the famous Vedic saying: “Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam”.

This also gives meaning to the Hindu Greeting of “Namaste”.

“The divinity in me respects and bows to the divinity in you”.

When we truly comprehend these thoughts, then:

- 1. There is no room for hate, bullying, and considering oneself (or one's race, religion, caste or country) superior, and others inferior.
- 2. There is love and caring for others in the society so that there is not a wide gap between have's and have-not's; no one goes hungry while food is thrown away from sumptuous parties of the rich.
- 3. There is no thought of cheating the poor, disenfranchising the poor. It condemns the selfish ideas like firing the lowest paid employees to give huge bonuses to the highest paid employees.

This is not an exhaustive list. But the above examples illustrate the point.

The goal of human life (Liberation) in Hindu religion is not a selfish pursuit of finding liberation for oneself while neglecting everyone else in the society. When one fully comprehends the point (C) above, that fallacy is removed. Hinduism is a very compassionate religion, the only religion that propounded the Whole World is My Family “Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam”.

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ)

To some thinkers, Geetā's subject is the conflict within oneself, the struggle for self identity (who am I and what is the purpose of my life?), steps to self-purification (moving from Tamas and Rajas to Sattva) and ultimately Self-realization or Moksha, liberation, merging in the Universal Consciousness.

Q. Who am I?

A. I am the Soul, not this body. This body is simply a vehicle for the soul.

Q. Why was I born?

A. I was born as a result of my karma (deeds) in my previous lives.

Q. What is the purpose of life?

A. To purify your character by following Yama, Niyama, introspection and following any of the four paths: Karm Yoga, Dhyan Yoga, Bhakti Yoga, or Gyan Yoga. Leading a Sāttvic life, discharge your moral duties towards your family and society according to Dharma, without ego, pride, or expectation of anything in return, treating success or failure with equipoise. Offer all your deeds to Brahman, surrendering with devotion, ultimately liberating your soul (achieving Moksha) by uniting with the Universal Spirit, Brahman.

Q. What is reincarnation? What happens after death?

A. If you follow the above path as explained in the purpose of life, you will merge with Brahman, the Ultimate Consciousness (Sat, Chit, Ānand). But, if you did not follow the moral principles (Dharma) in your life, you will be born aagain as a human (in a difficult situation) or in some other species.

If you did follow the path of Dharma, but did not achieve that ultimate state, you will go to heaven, experience Sat-Chit-Ānand for a very long time, then reincarnate on Earth as a human being in a sāttvic family so you can progress on the path of sādhanā to achieve that ultimate state: merging with Brahman, experiencing Sat-Chit-Ānand, not subject to rebirth again.

Thus, the wisdom of Geetā enables one to harness Spiritual Knowledge to strengthen their values and character, and develop appreciation for the Universal Love that is reflected through one's Service to Mankind.

Hari Om Tat Sat

Hari Om Tat Sat

Hari Om Tat Sat

Om Shantiḥ Shantiḥ Shantiḥ
Let there be peace in our hearts!
Peace all around us!!
Peace in the World!!!

References for Further Study

1. श्रीमद् भगवद् गीता--पदच्छेद, अन्वय साधारण भाषा टीका सहित, गीता प्रेस, गोस्वपुर
(for those who know Devanāgarī script, this is the best source to learn Geeta)
2. Srimad Bhagvad Gītā Bhāṣya (Commentary in Sanskrit) - Sri Sankarāchārya
(with English translation by Dr. A.G. Krishna Warriar)
3. The Holy Geeta, Commentary by HH Swāmi Chinmayānanda
4. The Teaching of the Bhagvad Gita – HH Swāmi Dayānanda Saraswati, Arsha Vidya Gurukul, PA
5. The Bhagvad Gita – Royal Science of God-Realization–God talks with Arjuna –Paramhansa Yogānanda (most detailed, elegant explanation of The Immortal Dialogue between Soul and Spirit (not a physical war between two armies)
6. Bhagvad Gita – The Song of God, Swāmi Prabhavānanda & Chris Isherwood
7. Bhagvad Gita As It Is – A. C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmi Prabhupāda
8. Bhagvad Gītā – Swāmi A. Pārthasārathy
9. The Eternities – Vedānta Treatise - Swāmi A. Pārthasārathy
10. Windows into the Infinite –A Guide to the Hindu Scriptures - by professor Barbara Powell- one of the best books summarizing the Vedas, Bhagvad Gita, and 11 main Upanishads)
11. The Bhagvad Gita – Dr. S. Rādhākrishnan, Harper Collins, India
12. The Bhagvad Gita – Prof. Eknath Easwaran, Nilgiri Press
13. The Bhagvad Gita – Bal Gangādhār Tilak
14. How to Know God – The Yoga Aphorisms of Patanjali – Translated with a commentary by Swāmi Prabhavānanda & Christopher Isherwood
15. The Yoga Sūtras of Patanjali – Prof. Edwin F. Bryant
16. The Difficulty of Being Good: On the Subtle Art of Dharma - Gurcharan
Das, (Retd.) CEO, Procter & Gamble, Penguin Books, India
17. Karma: The Ancient Science of Cause and Effect – Jeffrey Armstrong, Mandala Wisdom Library
18. “Hooked! Buddhist Writings on Greed, Desire, and the Urge to Consume”
Dr. Stephanie Kaza, Professor, University of Vermont (Shambhala, 2005)
19. Two Birds in a Tree: Timeless Indian Wisdom for Business Leaders – by Ram Nidumolu, Berrett-Koehler Publishers, Inc. San Francisco.
20. Happiness is You – by Dr. Siddharth B. Gautam, published by CreateSpace, North Charleston, SC

Appendix 1

Three Inherent Human Attributes (Guṇa)

Personalities of all human beings are derived from combinations of three fundamental Guṇa: Sattva, Rajas and Tamas. The following four verses expound on these natural attributes and how they affect everything in one's life:

- A1.1 सत्त्वं रजस् तम इति गुणाः प्रकृति-सम्भवाः
निबध्नन्ति महा-बाहो देहे देहिनम् अव्ययम् (BG 14.5)
Sattvam rajas tama iti guṇāḥ prakṛiti-sambhavāḥ nibadhnanti mahā-bāho dehe dehinam avyayam.

O Prince; Sattva, Rajas, and Tamas are three guṇas (or attributes) born of Prakṛiti (nature); inherent in every thing in nature. Even though the Self is immortal, it is bonded to the body by these three guṇas.

- A1.2 सत्त्वात् सञ्जायते ज्ञानं रजसो लोभ एव च
प्रमाद मोहौ तमसो भवतो अज्ञानमेव च (BG 14.17)
Sattvāt Sanjāyate gyānam rajaso lobha eva cha pramāda-mohau tamaso bhavato agyānam eva cha

Sattva gives rise to knowledge and wisdom;
Rajas to greed, cravings, selfish interests, and Tamas to ego, false pride, attachment, and ignorance.

A1.3 पुरुषः प्रकृतिस्थो हि भुङ्क्ते प्रकृतिजान्-गुणान्
कारणं गुण-सङ्गोस्य सत्-असत्-योनि-जन्मसु (BG 13.22)
Purushaḥ prakṛti-stho hi bhunkte prakṛti-jān guṇān kāraṇam guṇa-sango'sya sat-asat-yoni-janmasu.

The Purusha (ātmā) seated in Prakriti (body) experiences these attributes of Prakriti.
The attachment of the Self to these Gunas is the cause of one's birth in good or bad places and situations.

A1.4 ऊर्ध्वं गच्छन्ति सत्त्व-स्था मध्ये तिष्ठन्ति राजसाः
जघन्य-गुण-वृत्तिस्था अधो गच्छन्ति तामसाः (BG 14.18)
Urdhvam gachchānti sattva-sthā madhye tisthanti rājasāh jaghanya-guṇa-vṛitti-sthā adho gachchānti tāmasāh

Those who practice Sattva rise up to a noble and happy life and ascend to heaven at the end of life.

Those who are ruled by Rajas remain engaged in fulfillment of desires –yet not finding fulfillment.
They return to a similar life after death.

Those enmeshed in Tamas suffer chasing after harmful activities in this life and the next.

Summary of Guṇa:

As human beings evolve during their lifetime through habits, associations, education, profession, influences of family, friends and associates, and vicissitudes of life, they acquire or accentuate some and diminish other Guṇa, thus continuously evolving the combination of the three attributes:

1. Sattvā (pure): pious, clean, gentle, holding high moral standards, thinking and working for the welfare of all. This is also called the “higher self” with the spiritually inspired thoughts, deeds and conduct.
2. Rajas (royal): egotistical, materialistic, selfish, devoting life to greed, sensory gratification, wanting/hoarding everything for themselves.
3. Tamas (ignorant): negative, ignorant, destructive, indulging in work or habits that are neither good for the self nor the society. This attribute is also called the “lower self” or base instinct.

For example:

- Sāttvic person eats nutritious vegetarian food, just enough to live a healthy life and not indulge in food, or waste or hoard food items (so that others, less fortunate do not go hungry).

- Rājasic eats too much of rich and tasteful foods (loaded with fat and sugar), resulting in obesity and heart disease, and waste or hoard food for themselves while oblivious of the scarcity of food for many in their own communities in the world.

- Tāmasic indulge in drugs, alcohol, tobacco, other narcotics, meat eating, etc., not caring for their own health, nor the effect of their lifestyle on others.

The truth expounded in Geetā is that NO ONE is pure Satva, Rajas or Tamas. Every person has a combination of all three Guṇa and the mix continues to change during one’s lifetime, and even during the course of the day.

Eliminating Tamas, reducing Rajas, and acquiring more Sattva should be the objective of sādhanā of anyone treading on the path of spirituality.

Appendix - 2 Yama and Niyama (from Yoga Sūtras)

Ethical Conduct for Hindus

Hinduism's ethical restraints are contained in ten simple precepts called Yama and Niyama. They define the codes of conduct by which we harness our instinctive forces and cultivate the innate, pristine qualities of our soul. They are scriptural injunctions for all aspects of thought, deeds and behavior.

Yama, the Five Principles of Ethical Conduct, Hindu Moral Code:

- 1) Ahimsā, non-violence or non-injury: not harming any living being through thoughts, words or deeds;
- 2) Satya, truthfulness: keeping thoughts, speech, and actions true to words;
- 3) Asteya, honesty: to neither steal nor covet others property;
- 4) Brahma-charya, divine conduct: Sāttvic conduct (see Appendix 1 for Guna); especially, remaining celibate when single, and faithful in marriage; 5) Aparigraha, non-hoarding: not collecting more than one needs – thus not depriving others of what they need to sustain life.

Niyama, the Eight Virtues: (yoga Sutras list only the last five)

- 1) Kshamā, forgiveness: pardon, tolerance with people, and patience with circumstances;
- 2) Dayā, compassion towards all humans and animals;
- 3) Dhriti, steadfastness: perseverance, firm in resolution/decision;
- 4) Shaucha, purity of body, mind and speech;
- 5) Santosh, contentment
- 6) Tapas, Self-discipline
- 7) Swādhyāy, Self-study and reflection
- 8) Ishvara Pranidhāna, devotion, surrendering to God.

Observing Yamas and Niyamas is a pre-requisite, before one can progress on the path of yoga.

Appendix - 3
Essential Karma (Meritorious deeds)
Yagya, Dāna, Tapa

Srī Krishna affirmed three meritorious deeds: Yagya, Dāna and Tapa that every one must perform to the best of their abilities in life.

A3.1 यज्ञ-दान-तपः-कर्म न त्याज्यं कार्यम् एव तत्
यज्ञो दानं तपः चैव पावनानि मनीषिणाम् (BG 18.5)
Yagya-dāna-tapaḥ-karma na tyājyam kāryam eva tat yagyo dānam tapah chaiva pāvanāni maneeshiṇām.

One should never cease to perform these three sacred and obligatory actions:

1. Yagya: Selfless service for the welfare of society,
2. Dāna: Charity for the welfare of those in need, and
3. Tapa: Austerities for the purification of character.

These activities are helpful in purification of the self, even for those who have attained great knowledge and wisdom.

Yagya = A project of Selfless Service to Humanity, performed as a religious duty, as service to God.

A3.2 सह-यज्ञाः प्रजाः सृष्ट्वा पुरोवाच प्रजापतिः अनेन प्रसविष्यध्वम् एष वोस्तु इष्ट-कामधुक् (BG 3.10)
Saha-yagyāḥ prajāḥ sṛṣṭvā purovācha prajāpatiḥ anena prasavishyadhvam esha vo'stu ishṭa-kāmadhuk.

In the beginning of creation, Prajāpati (the Creator), created mankind with the spirit of cooperation, selfless service, and sacrifice and said, "By this spirit you shall always prosper. This will fulfill all your needs".

This verse conveys the notion that every achievement is possible for men and women in society if they act in the spirit of cooperation and sacrifice, without selfish interest.

Implicit in this verse is also the notion that Prajāpati created the cosmic powers to function in the service of all beings to maintain the harmonious growth of existence. The sun lights and heats the Earth. The moon shines and cools. The lakes, rivers and oceans store water for the planet. The Earth's gravity holds everything in place. And all this ... purely in the spirit of self-sacrifice and divine love (with no attachment or selfish motive). This is Saha-Yagya.

The veracity and purport of this utterance is exemplified by the Creator everyday: when a mother gives birth to a baby (performing the function of Prajāpati) she is endowed mentally by the spirit of sacrifice for the protection and nourishment of the new born, and physically with milk in her breasts to offer to the baby who has no other means to live and grow! This is true not only of humans, but animals and birds as well!

“The entire cosmos is a cooperative. The sun, the moon, and the stars function as a cooperative. The same is true for humans and animals, trees, and the Earth. When we realize that the world is a mutual, interdependent, cooperative enterprise — then we can build a noble environment. If our lives are not based on this truth, then we shall perish.” –Buddhadasa Bhikkhu

A3.3 इष्टान् भोगान् हि वो देवा दास्यन्ते यज्ञ-भाविताः

तैः दत्तान् अप्रदाय एभ्यो यो भुङ्क्ते स्तेन एव सः (BG 3.12)

Ishtān bhogān hi vo devā dāsyante yagya-bhāvitāḥ taiḥ dattān apradāya ebhyo yo bhunkte stena eva saḥ.

Pleased by the selfless services (yagna) offered by humans, Devas fulfill all their needs. But anyone who enjoys the bounties given by Devas without sharing it with others, less fortunate ones, and without offering selfless service to fellow humans, is indeed a thief!

Mahātmā Gāndhi's view on this verse:

Gandhi ji considered the earth a living organism. His ideas were expressed in terms of two fundamental laws: a Cosmic law, and the Law of Species.

- Cosmic Law views the entire universe as a single entity. Nothing could malfunction outside the threshold limits built into the grand system that includes both living and non-living phenomena. He believed that "the universe was structured and informed by the cosmic spirit, that all men, all life and indeed all creation were one.”

- Regarding the Law of Species, Gandhi believed that without the cooperation and sacrifice of both human and non-human beings evolution is not possible. Being rational human beings, we are the custodians of the rest of creation and should respect their rights and cherish the diversity. It is for this reason that taking more than the required resources is seen as theft.

Dāna (Donation, Charity)

A3.4 दातव्यम् इति यत् दानम् दीयते अनुपकारिणे
देशे काले च पात्रे च तत् दानं सात्त्विकं स्मृतम् (17.20)

Dātavyam iti yat dānam deeyate anupakāriṇe deshe kāle cha pātre cha tad dānam sāttvikam smritam.

A donation that is given with the feeling that it is our sacred duty to give to the needy, to a worthy person (or organization), at an appropriate time and place, and without expectation of any personal gain in return, is a pure (Sattvic) gift.

An example of Tapa:

A3.5 अनुद्वेग-करं वाक्यं सत्यं प्रिय-हितं च यत्
स्वाध्याय-अभ्यासनं चैव वाङ्मयं तप उच्यते (BG 17.15)

Anudvega-karam vākyaṁ satyam priya-hitam cha yat svādhyāy abhyāsanam chaiva vāṅ-mayam tapa uchyate.

Speech that causes no harmful effect (anger, anxiety) to any one, that is truthful, pleasant (lovingly communicated) and helpful or beneficial to the listener, and speech that is used in reciting and practicing of scriptures is called the "austerity of speech".

Here is homework for students of vedānta desiring to take the first step of spiritual wisdom: Practice such speech at least once a month, especially on occasions when you hold a vrata (fast). Or let this tapa be your vrata.

Appendix - 4

Choosing a Vocation According to One's Natural Aptitude

A4.1 ब्राह्मण-क्षत्रिय-विशां शूद्राणां च परन्तप
कर्माणि प्रविभक्तानि स्वभाव-प्रभवैः गुणैः (BG 18.41)
Brāhmaṇa-kshatriya-vishāṃ shūdrāṇām cha parantapa karmāṇi pravi.bhaktāni svabhāva-prabha.vaiḥ guṇaiḥ.

O Prince, the division of labor in the society consisting of priests and teachers (Brahmin), administrators and soldiers (Kshatriya), traders (Vaishya) and service workers (Shudra) is based on the qualities of character and natural aptitudes that one is born with.

A4.2 शमो दमः तपः शौचं क्षान्तिः आर्जवम् एव च
ज्ञानं विज्ञानम् आस्तिक्यं ब्रह्म-कर्म स्वभाव-जम् (BG 18.42)
Shamo damaḥ tapaḥ shaucham kshāntiḥ ārjavam eva cha gyānam vigyānam āstikyam brahma-karma svabhāva-jam.

Those born with the qualities of serenity, self-restraint, austerity, purity (inner and outer), forgiveness and uprightness are suited for the vocation of Brahmin; that is, acquiring knowledge, learning as well as teaching about science and spirituality, and helping others to attain God-realization.

A4.3 शौर्यं तेजो धृतिःदाक्ष्यं युद्धे चापि अपलायनम्

दानम् ईश्वर-भावश्च क्षात्रं कर्म स्वभाव-जम् (BG 18.43)

Shauryam tejo dhrtiḥ dākshyam yuddhe chāpi apalāyanam
dānam Ishvara-bhāvaḥ cha kshātram karma svabhāva-jam.

Those born with physical prowess, splendor, firmness, dexterity, not fleeing from any challenge, who are generous by nature and attract respectful followers, are born leaders suited for the vocation of the Kshatriya, for protection of the weak in the society.

A4.4 कृषि-गौरक्ष्य-वाणिज्यं वैश्य-कर्म स्वभाव-जम्

परिचर्या आत्मकं कर्म शूद्रस्य अपि स्वभाव-जम् (BG 18.44)

Krishi-gau.rakshya-vāṇijyam vaishya-karma svabhāva-jam paricharyā ātmakam karma shūdrasya api svabhāva-jam.

Those born with the aptitude in farming, dairy, or interest in trade, commerce, or business are aptly suited for the vocation of the Vaishyas.

Those who are born with the aptitude and desire to serve fellow men and women are suited for the vocation of Shudra. This would include all vocations in service industries, government service, public service, community service, and vocations like nursing, etc.

As seen from these verses, the concept of four Varnas was created to encourage the development of natural aptitude; not merely following the vocation of the family one is born into. Over many thousands of years, the Varna system became corrupted into the birth based Jaati prathā (or in English vernacular, caste system).

God does not discriminate on the basis of one's vocation, or gender, ...

A4.5 मां हि पार्थ व्यपाश्रित्य ये अपि स्युः पाप योनयः
स्त्रियो वैश्याः तथा शूद्राः ते अपि यान्ति परां गतिम् (BG 9.32)

Māam hi pārtha vyapāshritya ye api syuḥ pāpa-yonayaḥ striyo vaiśhyāḥ tathā śhūdraḥ te api yānti parāam gatim.

Any one who takes refuge in Me attains the Supreme Bliss no matter what vocation, gender, creed, community, or status (or lack there of) in society they belong to, and even if one has committed a sin in this life or previous lives, they can attain the Supreme abode by surrendering to Me with loving devotion.

Society may discriminate against some, but everyone who takes shelter in the Supreme Abode is equal in the eyes of God.

Obviously, this is the precursor to the modern-day concept of Civil Rights in America and other developed nations that declare equal rights to all human beings in the society without regard to race, religion, skin color, gender, vocation, etc.

Appendix 5

Cosmology and Creation Theory in Geetā

Hindu Theory of Creation: Hindus believe in a cyclic nature of the universe embracing time spans of trillions of years. Hindu scriptures describe time units from the infinitesimal truti, lasting 1/1,000,000 of a second to a mahā-manvantara of 311 trillion years.

Srī Krishna described creation as an endless cyclic procession of creation, preservation and dissolution over incomprehensibly large cycles of time spans of trillions of years.

A5.1 सहस्र-युग-पर्यन्तम् अहः यत् ब्रह्मणो विदुः रात्रिं युग-सहस्रान्तां ते अहो रात्रिं विदो जनाः (BG 8.17)
Sahasra-yuga-paryantam ahaḥ yat brahmaṇo viduḥ rātrim yuga-sahasrāntām te aho-rātri-vido janāḥ.

Those who understand the cyclic process of cosmic evolution and dissolution know that ONE "Day of Brahmā" extends for one thousand mahā-yugas (one mahā-yuga is 4.32 million calendar years) and the "Night of Brahmā" also extends for the same duration. Thus a 'Day and Night of Brahmā equals 2000 Mahā-yugas = 8.64 billion years.

A5.2 अव्यक्ताद् व्यक्तयः सर्वाः प्रभवन्ति अहर-आगमे
रात्रि-आगमे प्रलीयन्ते तत्रैव अव्यक्त-संज्ञके (BG 8.18)
Avyaktād vyaktayaḥ sarvāḥ prabhavanti ahar-āgame rātri-āgame praleeyante tatraiva avyakta-sangyake.

At the dawn of the "Day of Brahmā", the physical universe with multitudes of forms evolves from the Un-manifested Source (Brahman). And when the "Night of Brahmā" begins, all the forms of the universe dissolve and merge back into the Un-manifested formless Source.

A5.3 मया अध्यक्षेण प्रकृतिः सूयते स-चराचरम् हेतुना अनेन कौन्तेय जगत् विपरिवर्तते (BG 9.10)
Mayā adhyaksena prakṛtiḥ sūyate sa-charā.charam hetunā anena kaunteya jagat vipari.vartate.

I preside over the creation of this manifest universe.
Under My direction, the Nature (Prakriti) gives birth (manifests) to all the moving (beings) and the unmoving (things like mountains and rivers).
And this is how, O Prince, the world goes around and around.

A5.4 यावत् सञ्जायते किञ्चित् सत्त्वं स्थावर-जङ्गमम् क्षेत्र-क्षेत्रज्ञ-संयोगात् तत् विद्धि भरतर्षभ (BG 13.27)
Yavat Sanjāyate kinchit sattvam sthāvara-janga.mam kshetra-kshetragya-sanyogāt tat viddhi bharatarshabha.

In this world, whatever exists, animate (that moves) or inanimate, O Prince, it is born from the union of the "Field" (physical matter) or the Prakriti, and the Purusha, the Soul, that is the source of life and consciousness in all beings.
The entire creation is a play of Purusha and Prakriti, or kshetra and kshetragya:

Kshetra = body, mind, senses, brain cells and chemicals (neurotrans-mitters) that generate thoughts, emotions, feelings of Rāga (likes), Dvesha (dislikes), as well as notions of intelligence, knowledge, wisdom, etc.

Kshetragya = the spirit that manifests as consciousness that gives life to the body, mind, intellect complex.

Hindu Cosmology - Theory of Creation

Scientist Carl Sagan, the distinguished Cornell University professor, astronomer and Pulitzer Prize-winning author, expressed the following views while filming the 10th episode of his famous Television series 'COSMOS' in India:

“ The main reason that we oriented this episode of COSMOS towards India is because of that wonderful aspect of Hindu cosmology which first of all gives a time-scale for the Earth and the universe -- a time-scale which is consonant with that of modern scientific cosmology. We know that the Earth is about 4.6 billion years old, and the cosmos, or at least its present incarnation, is something like 10 or 20 billion years old. The Hindu tradition has a day and night of Brahmā in this range, somewhere in the region of 8.4 billion years.”
“The Hindu religion is the only one of the world’s great faiths dedicated to the idea that the Cosmos itself undergoes an immense, indeed an infinite, number of deaths and rebirths. It is the only religion in which the time scales correspond to those of modern scientific cosmology. Its cycles run from our ordinary day and night to a day and night of Brahmā, 8.64 billion years long. Longer than the age of the Earth, or the Sun, and about half the time since the Big Bang.” “As far as I know. It is the only ancient religious tradition on the Earth which talks about the right timescale. We want to get across the concept of the right timescale, and to show that it is not unnatural. In the West, people have the sense that what is natural is for the universe to be a few thousand years old, and that billions is indwelling, and no one can understand it. The Hindu concept is very clear. Here is a great world culture which has always talked about billions of years.” “Finally, the many billion-year time scale of Hindu cosmology is not the entire history of the universe, but just one day and night of Brahmā, and there is the idea of an infinite cycle of births and deaths and an infinite number of universes, ...”

“Science is not only compatible with spirituality; it is a profound source of spirituality. When we recognize our place in an immensity of light-years and in the passage of ages, when we grasp the intricacy, beauty, and subtlety of life, then that soaring feeling, that sense of elation and humility combined, is surely spiritual. So are our emotions in the presence of great art or music or literature, or acts of exemplary selfless courage such as those of Mohandas Gandhi or Martin Luther King, Jr. The notion that science and spirituality are somehow mutually exclusive does a disservice to both.”

— Carl Sagan, The Demon-Haunted World: Science as a Candle in the Dark

Professor Alan Watts, graduate school dean and research fellow of Harvard University, drew heavily on the insights of Vedānta. Watts became well known in the 1960s as a pioneer in bringing Eastern philosophy to the West. He wrote: "To the philosophers of India, however, Relativity is no new discovery, just as the concept of light years is no matter for astonishment to people used to thinking of time in millions of kalpas, ( A kalpa is about 4,320,000 years). The fact that the wise men of India have not been concerned with technological applications of this knowledge arises from the circumstance that technology is but one of innumerable ways of applying it." It is, indeed, a remarkable circumstance that when Western civilization discovers Relativity, it applies it to the manufacture of atom-bombs, whereas Oriental civilization applies it to the development of new states of consciousness." – (source: Spiritual Practices of India - By Frederic Spiegelberg Introduction by Alan Watts p. 8-9).

Dick Teresi - author / coauthor of several books about science and technology, including The God Particle, writes:

"Indian cosmologists, the first to estimate the age of the earth at more than 4 billion years. They came closest to modern ideas of atomism, quantum physics, and other current theories. India developed very early, enduring atomist theories of matter. Possibly Greek atomistic thought was influenced by India, via the Persian civilization."

"The cycle of creation and destruction continues forever, manifested in the Hindu deity Shiva, Lord of the Dance, who holds the drum that sounds the universe's creation in his right hand and the flame that, billions of years later, will destroy the universe in his left....The 8.64 billion years that mark a full day-and-night cycle in Brahma's life is about half the modern estimate for the age of the universe. The ancient Hindus believed that each Brahmā day and each Brahmā night lasted a kalpa, 4.32 billion years, with 72,000 kalpas equaling a Brahma century, 311,040 billion years in all...Only Hindus could conceive of the universe in terms of billions of years!"

"The similarities between Indian and modern cosmology do not seem accidental. Perhaps ideas of creation from nothing, or alternating cycles of creation and destruction are hardwired in the human psyche. Certainly, Shiva's percussive drumbeat suggests the sudden energetic impulse that could have propelled the big bang. And if, as some theorists have proposed, the big bang is merely the prelude to the big crunch and the universe is caught in an infinite cycle of expansion and contraction, then ancient Indian cosmology is clearly cutting edge compared to the one-directional vision of the big bang. The infinite number of Hindu universes is currently called the many world hypothesis, which is no less undocumentable nor unthinkable."

(source: Lost Discoveries: The Ancient Roots of Modern Science - By Dick Teresi p.159 and 174 -212). For more, refer to chapter on Advanced Concepts).

Appendix 6. Index of Sanskrit Verses

Aham sarvasya prabhavo	5.1	Nasti buddhiih ayuktasya	2.1
Ahankaram balam darpam	1.9	Na tu evaham jātu nāsam	4.7
Ahimsa satyam akrodhaū	4.3	Neh abhikrama nāshosti	1.2
Amanitvam adambhitvam	4.4	Paritranaya sādhanam	4.18
Ananyaū cintayanto mam	5.5	Patram pushpam phalam	5.9
Anashritah karma-phalam	3.2	Prāpya punya-kritām lokān	1.3
Anta-kale cha mam eva	5.6	Prashanta-atma vigata-bheeh	2.3
Anudvega-karam vakyam	A3.5	Prashanta-manasam hi enam	2.10
Asanshayam maha-baho	2.6	Purushah prakrti-stho hi	A1.3
Asha-pasha-shatai baddhah	1.8	Sahasra-yuga-paryantam	A5.1
Avibhaktam cha bhūteshu	4.27	Saha-yagyah prajah srishtva	A3.2
Avyaktad vyaktayah sarvah	A5.2	Samam sarveshu bhuteshu	4.15
Bahūnam janmanam ante	4.33	Sarva-bhūta-stham atmanam	2.11
Bandhuh ātmā ātmanas tasya	1.6	Sarva-dharman parityajya	5.1
Bhaktya mam abhijanati	5.4	Sarvasya chāham hridi sannī	4.19
Bhoga aishvarya prasaktanam	1.10	Sattvam rajas tama iti guna	A1.1
Brahmana-kshatriya-visham	A4.1	Sattvat Sanjayate gyanam	A1.2
Brahmano hi pratisthaham	4.32	Shamo damah tapah shaucham	A4.2
Brahmany adhaya karmani	3.11	Shariram yat avapnoti	4.11
Brahmarpanam brahma havir	4.31	Shauryam tejo dhrtih dakshyam	A4.3
Buddhi- yukto jahatecha	3.8	Sukha duhkhe same kritva	3.10
Chanchalam hi manah krishēa	2.5	Tasmat asaktah satatam	3.3
Datavyam iti yat danam	A3.4	Tasmat sarveshu kaleshu	3.12
Dehino asmin yatha dehe	4.5	Tatra ekagram manah kritva	2.4
Dharma-kshetre kuru-kshetre	B.1	Tvam adi-devah	4.29
Dhyāyato vishayān punsah	1.3	Uddharet ātmanā ātmānam	1.5
Dhyanen atmani pashyanti	1.1	Upadrashta anumanta cha	4.14
Divi surya-sahasrasya	4.23	Urdhvam gachchanti sattvastha	A1.4
Évam etad yatha attha	4.21	Vasansi jeernani yatha vihaya	4.6
Gatih bharta prabhuh sakshee	4.30	Vidya-vinaya-sampanne	4.2
Gyanena tu tad agyanam	4.13	Yadā bhūta-prithak-bhavam	4.28
Idam sharēram kaunteya	B.2	Yadā yadā hi dharmasya	4.17
Ihaika-stham jagat kritsnam	4.22	Yagya-dana-tapah-karma	A3.1
Indriyācām hi caratām yan	1.1	Yah idam paramam guhyam	C.2
Indriyāēi parāēi āhur	B.4	Yastu indriyani manasa	1.12
Ishtān bhogān hi vo devā	A3.3	Yat aditya-gatam tejo	4.25
Ishvarah sarva-bhutanam	4.16	Yatah pravrittih bhūtanam	3.1
Iti te gyanam akhyatam	C.1	Yatato hi api kaunteya	1.2
kama esha krodha esha	1.7	Yatha akasha-sthito nityam	4.26
Karmana eva hi samsiddhim	3.4	Yatha deepo nivata-stho	2.8
Karmani eva adhikarah te	3.6	Yatha prakāshayati ekah	4.12
Krishi-gau-rakshya-vanijyam	A4.4	Yat karoshi yat ashnasi	5.10
Krodhāt bhavati sammohah	1.4	Yato yato nischarati manah	2.7
Maam hi partha vyapashrity	A4.5	Yatra uparamate chittam	2.9
Mahā-bhūtāni ahankāro	B.3	Yatra yogeshvarah Krishno	C.3
Mam eva ansho jivloke	4.10	Yat yat acharati shresthah	3.5
Manmana bhava mad-bhaktah	5.2	Yavat Sanjayate kinchit	A5.4
Mat-karma-krin mat-paramo	5.3	Ye api anya devatah bhaktah	5.8
Mattah parataram nanyat	4.24	Yoga-sthah kuru karmani	3.9
Maya adhyaksena prakrtih	A5.3	Yo mām pashyati sarvatra	4.20
Na hi jnanena sadrisham	4.1	Yo yo yam yam tanum bhaktah	5.7
Nainam ghndanti shastrani	4.9	Yukta-ahara-viharasya	2.2
Na Jayate mriyate va kadachin	4.8
		Yuktah karma-phalam tyaktva	3.7

About the Author

Ved Prakash Chaudhary, Ph.D.

Ved ji served as an Assistant Professor at Puntnagar University and as Vice-Principal in a Technical Training Center in India before coming to USA for graduate studies in 1965. He received a Ph.D. in 1970 and worked at Bell Laboratories and Bell communications Research in New Jersey till 2002.

Growing up in India, he loved Sanskrit and was taught yoga, meditation and lessons from Geetā and Rāmāyan by his father, a headmaster, and a granduncle who was a Swāmi ji. They inspired him to be a Karm Yogi. Inspired by the teachings of Mahātmā Gāndhi and Martin Luther King, Jr., he got involved in the civil rights work in 1987 when a misguided youth gang called “Dot-busters” started harassing Hindu men, women and youth because they put a dot (bindi or tilak) on their forehead. Ved ji founded a civic group to engage the Indian American community with the state officials in resolving the situation. Quickly, this menace was halted, and an Anti-Racial-harassment bill was passed by the Governor of New Jersey in 1992.

Ved ji served on NJ Governor's Ethnic Advisory Council, on the Board of Trustees of Rutgers University and as Asst Commissioner in the NJ Environmental protection Dept. He also served as vice-chair, NJ Advisory committee to the US Commission on Civil Rights and as a Board member on the Monmouth Center for World Religions and Ethical Thought to promote interfaith understanding.

He took an early retirement to enter Vānaprastha Āshram, to devote his time (A) to study Bhagavad Geetā and Upanishads from authentic sources: Sri Shankarāchārya's Bhāsyā, Dr. Rādhākṛishnan, Swāmi Chinmayānanda, Swāmi Dayānanda, Swāmi Shāswatānanda of Akhand Geetāpeeth, Kurukshetra, India; to immerse himself in swādhyāya, sādhanā, tapasyā and bhakti of Sri Krishna; to learn by heart and recite verses from BG with bhāva (feelings), sandhi viccheda, and manan/chintana of their meaning, day and night; even in his dreams his mind engaged in manan/chintana of Geetā.

(B) to devote his time to selfless service to improve education about India and Hinduism in USA. Realizing that textbooks used in schools across USA contained mis-information, he founded Educators' Society for Heritage of India (www.ESHAusa.org) to engage teachers and professors to improve textbooks, and to teach Hindi language and culture of India to heritage students.

He realized that though good translations and commentaries on Geetā abound, they are rather esoteric. A short booklet was needed to provide an overview of Hindu religion, with practical advice on living a life with dhārmic values. Therefore, he composed Concise Geeta with important verses from Geetā; succinctly organizing them in five chapters (putting ancillary information in Appendices) in the style of modern textbooks with a short Introduction at the beginning, a short Synopsis at the end of each chapter, and providing practical life examples for college students and professionals. It is limited to 108 verses in 108 pages to make it an easy read for college students and young professionals.

(Back cover) Critical Acclaim for the Concise Geetā

Shrimad Bhagvad Geeta, the Divine Song, is a jewel of India's spiritual wisdom and the final revelation of the ultimate truth. Geeta's seven hundred verses in 18 chapters provide a definitive guide to Hindu Philosophy and Way of Life. Dr. Chaudhary, a scientist, educator, and a scholar, has ventured into a highly intellectual pursuit of writing a well-researched summary of Bhagvad Geetā. It is a concise book for understanding the essential lessons from Geetā and conducting a purposeful life with the moral and ethical values derived from it. It is written for young professionals who want to pursue ethical conduct in their professional and personal lives. His writing is lucid and authoritative, and it has depth and clarity because Vedic philosophy, religion and culture are intensely ingrained in his conduct.

-- Author, Speaker, and Professor, Dr. Ravi Chaturvedi

Concise Geetā summarizes and provides a very different and very helpful perspective on the four spiritual paths (Dhyān, Karm, Gyān and Bhakti yoga) explained by Sri Krishna in Bhagvad Geeta.

Just as people recite the "Sunderkand" from Rām Charit Mānas (which takes about two hours to recite) I suggest people should read Concise Geetā (108 verses in about 108 pages) to reasonably understand the gist of the entire Bhagvad Geetā in about two hours.

I feel like reading the Concise Geeta again and again along with its very useful commentaries. Thank you for adding more information on the subject of birth-death and reincarnation.

-- Dr. Ramesh Paliwal, former Professor and Researcher

Many books have been written about the true message of Bhagavad Geetā. Most of the books, lectures, and articles explaining the wisdom of Geetā focus on renunciation and moksha at the end of life, which is of interest to people in their old age, but not to the youth, young career professionals, and young couples raising families.

Concise Geetā, aimed at the young generation of today, written in their vernacular, gives a clear message of maintaining self-discipline/moral conduct, practicing meditation, and performing one's duties without getting distracted either by the external factors, or by the desire for results. I highly recommend it to young professionals. It's a great little book full of wonderful insights.

-- Ram Misra, Ph.D., Professor, Montclair State University, NJ

---